Wall and Broad Still There
Panic, Foolish Word
Stalin's Stake
The Busy Rum Demon

By Arthur Brisbane

THE WORLD didn't come to an end yesterday, after all.

When three o'clock struck, Broad and Wall Street were still joined together at the corner where the Stock Exchange looks on Morgan & Co. and they both look on the sub-treasury as Steel decided to go up instead of down, and incidentally, those that sell good American stocks short now will eventually wish that a millstone had been tied about their necks and they thrown into the depths of the sea.

The word "panic," one of the most disagreeable in the language, sending a chill to the soul of gamblers and sound businessmen alike, is, as panics themselves usually are, based on meaningless fear.

The god, Pan, with shoulders and arms of a man, legs of a goat, was heard howling in the woods, causing among the people panic fear, hence our word panic.

What they really heard was the wind howling in caves or woods. There wasn't any Pan.

There isn't any Pan now in the United States, with its wealth and gigantic resources of gold and other money unimpaired.

But the bears do the bowling, and fear does the rest.

We need the angel, minutely described by Mohammed, who saw the angel in the seventh heaven, on that famous midnight trip.

According to Mohammed, the angel had seventy thousand heads, each with seventy thousand mouths, each mouth had seventy thousand tongues, each tongue spoke seventy thousand different languages, and all were incessantly employed in chanting the praises of the Most High.

But even that angel, however, with his seventy thousand times seventy thousand tongues, multiplied by seventy thousand languages, wouldn't be able to comfort some of the frightened pessimists.

Mr. Gilbert, careful observer in Washington, says Stalin, Russia's ruler, has "staked everything on the five-year plan." If the five-year period ends with Russia not changed from a medieval agricultural to a modern industrial state Stalin will fall, and Russia will have another revolution.

To make accurate predictions about Russia is hard and the five-year plan will not fail sufficiently to cause Stalin's fall.

Peter the Great changed Russia from an Oriental to an Occidental country in a few years. Stalin might make as great a change in another direction.

In any case, Stalin, holding power, knows how to keep it, by shooting or exiling opponents. He's a man of action. Anybody that wants his job will have to take it from him.

Russians of the old school talk bravely outside Russia's borders, but they show no inclination to go in.

The Rev. Dr. Stanley High, editor of the Christian Herald, says wet Republicans are conspiring against President Hoover. The nomination of wet Mr. Tuttle for governor of New York, as part of a plot to get rid of Mr. Hoover in 1932, and put Dwight W. Morrow, also wet, in his place.

It is an interesting vision of wickedness. But, Dwight W. Morrow doesn't believe it, Mr. Tuttle doesn't believe it, President Hoover doesn't believe it, and the convention of 1932 will re-nominate Mr. Hoover.

Otherwise it is a good vision.

The candidates for governor of New York, Roosevelt, Democratic, Tuttle, Republican, are cheered by heavy registration. Apparently the state is taking an interest in its government this time.

Because of sudden change in the public mind, both Republican and Democratic candidates are running as "wringing wets."

The vote of the Independent home-dry candidate will shed light on the status of prohibition in the richest, biggest city and most prosperous state of the Union.

The demon rum continues to demonstrate increased efficiency in our bootleg era. It was bad enough in old days, when varnish and wood extract were not used to make whiskey. Whiskey killed you rather slowly.

At present, the process may take anywhere from five minutes to five years.

In Newark, N. J., yesterday, for instance, four people died promptly after drinking bootleg. The "authorities" say that more deaths may follow, as the particular whiskey seems to be widely distributed."

It is amazing that adults, not hopeless alcoholics, should

Yale Bowl, New Haven, Oct. 11—Typical "Georgia weather" greeted the formidable University of Georgia football eleven as the white-jerseyed players trotted onto the bowl here this afternoon to clash with Yale in an effort to prove that their 15 to 0 victory over Old Eli a year ago was not a fluke.

Fully 40,000 spectators, including 4,000 members of the American Legion, who came here from Boston as guests of the Yale Athletic Association, were on hand.

FIRST PERIOD.

Georgia sprang a sensation on the very first play when Downes, the Southerners' little quarterback, received Yale's kickoff on the 19-yard line and ran 81 yards for a touchdown. He raced down in the Harvard Stadium, Oct. 11—A hot sun beat down today on the football fans here for the Harvard-Springfield gridiron battle.

Despite pre-game reports from the Harvard camp, a strong Crimson backfield took the field for the game, with Barry Wood at quarter, Batchelder and Devens at halfback posts and Jack Schereschewsky at fullback.

Harvard had Harding and Orden on the wings, Richards and Upton at tackles, Trafford and Bancroft guards and Capt. Ben Ticknor at center.

FIRST PERIOD

Springfield won the toss, and elected to kick. Knowlton kicked to Wood, who was downed by Wilson on Harvard 35-yard line. Batchelder plugged the center of the line for seven yards. Springfield was penalized five yards, bringing the ball to the Harvard 45. Schereschewsky made a two-yard gain. Batchelder went around his own right end to Springfield's 45-yard line.

Devens made first down on Springfield's 40-yard line, but was hurt on the play. Record replaced Devens at right half. Wood picked up six yards through tackle. Sherry hit the center of the line and put the ball on the Springfield 30-yard line. Sherry knifed to a first down on the Springfield 23-yard line. Batchelder went off tackle to the Springfield 14-yard line. Sherry made a first down on Springfield's 12-yard stripe.

Wood threw a lateral to Batchelder, who was tackled by Rae on Springfield's goal line. Batchelder fumbled and recovered on Springfield's five-yard line. An off tackle shoot by Batchelder failed to gain. Wood was stopped without gain on Springfield's four-yard line. Harvard was penalized five yards

Thebaud in Lead as Race Is Called Off

Gloucester, Oct. 11 — With the jaunty little Gertrude L. Thebaud of Gloucester, leading big black Bluenose of Canada by over four minutes, a few miles past the half way mark in the second race of the international fishermen's series a "no contest" was declared because the vessels were unable to finish within the six hour time limit.

Gertrude L. Thebaud, which on Thursday had won the first of the best two out of three races, again had held the lead from the start today, being at one time pushed hard by Bluenose.

The contest at the halfway mark became a race against time as well as a battle between the two schooners. They had required slightly more than three hours to negotiate half the course and they would have to do better than that on the second circuit to come home in time. Thursday the schooners made

Strong Brown Team Tests Princeton

Palmer Stadium, Princeton, N. J., Oct. 11 (INS)—The test of Princeton's strength came this afternoon in the Tigers' annual meeting with a fighting Brown University team before 25,000 fans.

Princeton was down in the betting at odds of 5 to 4 but it still was figured to have a fighting chance that must be accorded every Roper outfit.

However, the current Tiger was deemed to be devoid of adequate replacements and its lack of experience in the face of Brown's veteran line left the pre-game forecasters no alternative but to string with the Bear.

FIRST PERIOD

James received the kick-off on the six-yard line and came back 22 yards. Aided by an off-side penalty and a 15-yard impost against Brown for illegal use of hands Princeton quickly got a first down on Brown's 46-yard line. Following Howson's quick kick to the 20 yard line, Brown reeled off 28 yards in four dashes inside tackle by Gilmartin, Rotelli and Fogarty.

A pass, Fogarty to Gurll, then took the ball to Princeton's 43-yard line. After Rotelli and Forbes had gained 11 yards between them Gurll fumbled and Mestres recovered for Princeton on its 38-yard line.

Recovering Howson's punt on its 25-yard line, Brown started another advance that carried to Princeton's 37-yard line, aided by Gurll's flashing runs and two offside penalties, as the period ended.

Score, end first period—Brown 0, Princeton 0.

SECOND UPERIOD

The Brown attack was stopped and Fogarty attempted a pass, which was intercepted by Zuniel

NAVY HARD FOE FOR IRISH

Notre Dame Stadium, South Bend, Ind., Oct. 11 (INS)—With more than 50,000 rabid "Irish" fans in their seats the first big intersectional game of the year between Notre Dame and Navy was ready to start here today at 2 p. m.

Bill Ingram's Gobs had checked in goat and all, and all hands were set for the dedicatory ceremonies and the game.

FIRST QUARTER

Notre Dame chose to defend the north goal. Underwood kicked off and Kolten returned 25 yards to the Notre Dame 40-line. The Navy held and Notre Dame kicked. Navy was no better on the advance. There was an exchange of kicks and attempts at forward passes which went wrong, and then Navy got a break when Gannon shot a pass to Byng for 38 yards on Notre Dame's 25-yard line.

Host pulled down a Navy pass on his 23-yard line. Notre Dame couldn't gain and kicked. Navy made a first down, but Koken intercepted a pass on his 35-yard line.

STATE-WIDE 'BABY FARM' PROBE OPENED; MISSING CHILD SOUGHT

DEATH LIST NOW PLACED AT SIX

Four Investigators of the Child Welfare Board Start an Inquiry Centring Near Boston

Four investigators for the Child Welfare Board today were assigned to conduct a state-wide probe into the reported existence of "baby farms" similar to the one alleged to have been operated by Mrs. Rena Golden, of Dedham.

Already a child death list of six is established and a trail of possible old infant, known only as "Lord" or "Lloyd" has been missing since last August.

The probe was ordered today by Miss Winifred Keneran, head of the Child Welfare Board, as a result of complaints received since the disclosures in the Boston Evening American of the Golden "baby farm" in Dedham and Westwood.

"FARMS" NEAR BOSTON

Miss Keneran refused to reveal the locations of the "baby farms" that have been brought to her attention. She said they were in small communities not far from Boston.

That these farms are started and flourish for long periods of time before they are finally discovered and exterminated by the Child Welfare officials was due to the shortage of investigators attached to the Child Welfare office, Miss Keneran explained.

Miss Keneran was high in her praise of the expose of the Golden farm in the Boston Evening American.

Meanwhile Inspector Edward Flannigan of the Dedham police is pressing the search for Mrs. Mary O'Neil, mother of one of the dead babies, whom police regard as a key witness in their probe.

SOUGHT IN BOSTON

According to State Detective Fleming, the "Lord or Lloyd" child was brought to the home of Mrs. Golden Aug. 2, last. Who brought the child there and the identities of its parents and their address are unknown to authorities.

Miss Jolly of the Child Welfare Board told Detective Fleming that Mrs. Golden wrote to the Child Welfare Board that she had the child. This report resulted in the state board officials writing back to Mrs. Golden that they forbade her boarding more than two children.

Miss Jolly said that two days later Mrs. Golden, using the back of the letter sent to her by the Child Welfare Board, wrote that she had returned the child to its parents.

MRS. GOLDEN QUIZZED

When Mrs. Golden was questioned about this child by Miss Jolly at the Dedham jail, where she is being held in default of $2000 bail to await trial on a charge of maintaining an infant boarding house illegally, she could not tell what had become of the baby.

Parents blamed the deaths of the infants, not to carelessness on the part of Mrs. Golden, but to the weakness of their children.

The possibility that the body of the O'Neil child and that of a baby named McKay, who died within a day of each other, might be exhumed faded today when Detective Fleming, after a conference with Dr. A. L. Worthington and Dr. Clarence M. Kelley, decided that nothing could be gained by such a step.

The informant of data on the death record of the O'Neil child, according to the record, was Mrs. Golden. Mrs. Mary McKay, mother of the McKay child, furnished the information for the second death record.

One of the most important moves made in the investigation was the calling of Miss Mary White, one of the child "nurses" employed at the Golden "baby farm" last summer, from her classes at the Dedham high school for questioning.

The White girl offered but little help to the officials. She asserted that her employer was always careful in her care of the children, and that she, herself, did most of the housework at the Golden home, while Mrs. Golden fed and cared for the infants in her charge.

The young girl, however, offered contradiction to the assertions of Mrs. Rose Antonouccio, of Scituate, who identified her daughter, known as Louise Burke, through the child's photograph in the Boston Evening American, that she had visited her child every week while it was at Mrs. Golden's home.

Mrs. Antonoucci insisted to the police that she had paid the child's board in weekly payments of $5 every week, excepting three weeks when she was ill.

The children who have died and whose names are known are: Mary O'Neil, "male" McKay, Alfred Hamilton of Chelsea and Channing Crabtree of Cambridge.

The mother of the Hamilton baby and the father of the Crabtree baby have been interviewed.

Wind Fails; Fishermen's Cup Race Called Off

the first circuit of the triangle in two hours and a half.

Bluenose surprised everyone when she clipped two minutes from the Thebaud's lead on the second six-mile leg, but soon after the 12-mile mark was rounded the Gloucester boat again drew away from the Novader. The wind had faded at times to five miles or less and Theband picked up more than two minutes she lost on the second leg.

Times at the halfway mark of the 37¾ nautical miles course were: Thebaud, 1:05.56; Bluenose, 1:10.05, making Thebaud's lead 4 minutes 10 seconds.

The committee will meet tonight to consider sailing a race tomorrow.

AT THE FIRST TURN

Times at the six-mile turn were: Thebaud 11:05:31, Bluenose 11:09:15, giving the Thebaud a lead of 3 minutes 44 seconds.

The times indicated Bluenose was much improved over Thursday. In the opening race Thebaud led her to the first mark by 6 minutes 45 seconds and the Gloucester boat's lead today was roughly half of that, a minute of which she accumulated before Bluenose crossed the starting line.

Although the wind was much lighter than that of Thursday, the schooners made better time for the first leg. Thebaud bettered her time by more than 12 minutes, and Bluenose shaved more than 15 minutes from her first day's time.

WIND FADES AWAY

At noon, two hours after the start, the schooners had not negotiated a third of the course. The wind had faded to such an extent that the boats had little more than steerage way on them.

Just before noon, while still about two miles away from the 12-mile mark, Thebaud jibed over on the starboard tack and pointed for the mark. Bluenose followed a few minutes later.

Thebaud led Bluenose by only 1 minute 44 seconds at the 12-mile mark. The times at the 12 mark were: Thebaud 12:26:18, Bluenose 12:28:02.

Bluenose had clipped two minutes off Thebaud's lead during the second six-mile leg. In a run before a failing breeze, the big salt banker's performance came as a surprise to many who had regarded her as a strictly weather boat.

THEBAUD GAINS AGAIN

The schooners required about an hour and 20 minutes to sail the second leg, which Thebaud negotiated Thursday in about 43 minutes.

Thebaud again stepped out well in the lead as the boats reached the 18-mile mark. She led the Bluenose around it by 4 minutes and 10 seconds, having picked up two minutes and 16 seconds on the third leg. The time was Thebaud, 1:05:55; Bluenose, 1:10:05.

The Gloucesterman, which on Thursday won the first of the best two out of three races, was again favored by the weather. Although the recut sails of the big black Bluenose were setting much better, she appeared to have little chance against the smaller and racier local schooner in such light conditions.

As the two staunch vessels went down the first leg for the turn of the 27 and a fraction nautical miles course Bluenose appeared to be offering Gertrude L. Thebaud a good race in the wind that was blowing at a velocity of from 12 to 15 knots. The vessels were on course number one.

Thousands of spectators, ashore and afloat, cheered the vessels as they came down past Dog Water Breakwater.

IN NORTHERLY BREEZE

The race began with a northerly breeze. The bright October weather and more comfortable sea conditions brought many more spectators out on the ocean than followed the racing schooners in the opening contest.

Both boats went away on port tacks. Bluenose had everything set, including her fisherman's staysail. Thebaud also was wearing her entire suit of canvas except for the fishermen's staysail, which is of doubtful value in windward work.

Three quarters of an hour after the start Gertrude L. Thebaud appeared to be maintaining her lead but Bluenose, with her better fitting canvas, showed an ability to sail closer to the wind.

U. S. BOAT MAY GO TO BRAZIL

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—The cruiser Pensacola has been ordered to Guantanamo and will stand by there to proceed later to Brazilian waters if it is necessary to take off American citizens as a result of the revolution in that country.

Porto Alegre, Rio Grande Do Sul, Oct. 11 (AP)—The destroyer Maranhoa attempted to land federal forces at Sobituba, Santa Catharina, during the night, but was repulsed by heavy insurgent fire. An official revolutionary commique said today.

The communique said some men were landed but were forced again to take to the boats and return to the Maranhoa. The destroyer exchanged fire with the rebel forces for about 40 minutes then withdrew from range.

Insurgents occupied Imbituba, a port of which Sobituba is a part, and about 100 miles south of Florianapolis, sole remaining federal stronghold along the Santa Catharina and Rio Grande Do Sul coast line.

Another bulletin said mobilization of rebel troops in the south was proceeding and that 50,000 men actually were in the field. More than 20,000 were said to constitute the vanguard of this army, under Trifino Correia, which soon will have established contact with the enemy beyond Annitopolis.

Fire Ties Up Traffic

Traffic on Newbury and Beacon sts., Back Bay, was tied up for nearly half an hour today when a fire destroyed a city dump truck filled with excelsior and waste paper.

Miss Helen Bropley was surprised with a miscellaneous shower last night at the home of Mrs. Reina Parks, 115 Norway st., Back Bay, which was attended by all girl employes of the Boston Wholesale Millinery. Legionnaires gave a concert and dancing was enjoyed.

Son of Ex-Mayor Weds

JOHN F.'S SON TAKES MEDFORD GIRL AS BRIDE

Former Mayor Unable to Attend the Nuptials Because of Illness

At a nuptial mass at 10 o'clock this morning in St. Raphael's Church, West Medford, the Rev. Charles F. Glennon, the pastor, solemnized the marriage of Thomas Acton Fitzgerald, son of ex-Mayor and Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald of Boston, and Miss Margaret Bernice Fitzpatrick, daughter of Mrs. Anna M. Fitzpatrick of 308 Boston ave., West Medford.

The ex-mayor was unable to be present on account of ill-health.

Attending the ceremony was a large gathering of friends of both the young people. The bride was given away in marriage by her brother-in-law, John Harold Mitchell of Medford. Her only attendant was Miss Miriam Lippincott of Winthrop Highlands.

Thomas Woodbridge Ashley of Belmont was best man and the ushers were John F. Fitzgerald, Jr., of Milton, Frederick Hannon Fitzgerald of Brookline, both brothers of the bridegroom; F. Gerald Doherty of Milton and Charles Cleary of Dorchester.

The bride's gown was a princess model of ivory satin, trimmed with alencon lace. Her veil was worn by her grandmother on her wedding day and is of tulle, Juliet style, trimmed with alencon lace. She carried white orchids. The maid of honor was in a gown of daffodil yellow, with transparent velvet hat to match, trimmed with turquoise, and carried yellow chrysanthemums and delphinium.

Following the ceremony, a reception took place at Hotel Commander, Cambridge.

Heroic French Priest Calls at City Hall

Among the interesting visitors who called at City Hall to pay his respects to Mayor Curley is the Rev. Jean Pfleiger, S. J., of France, who visited there yesterday.

Father Pfleiger, though he served in the World War as private, managed to win the unusual distinction for a soldier of that rank of being awarded the Legion of Honor by the French Government. The priest was wounded three times, once while he was kneeling in prayer in front line trenches.

Hearst's Analysis of Business Praised

Inasmuch as William Randolph Hearst's analysis of the cause of the present industrial depression, published in Thursday's Evening American, is given by a number of Boston economists, financiers and financial district leaders.

Mr. Hearst credited overcapitalization and overexpansion as underlying causes of present-day conditions.

Among the many who concur in his views are the following:

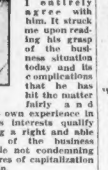
DEAN SAYERS LORD, Boston University School of Business Administration—

Dean Lord

After reading the statement of Mr. Hearst, I feel assured that he has touched the nerve of the whole matter. I entirely agree with him. It struck me upon reading his grasp of the business situation today and its complications that he has hit the matter fairly and squarely. His own experience in large business interests qualify him for giving a right and able interpretation of the business situation, while not condemning the best features of capitalization and specialization.

CARL DREYFUS, financier and philanthropist: Bankers, theoretical accountants, heads of economic institutions, have very freely attempted to explain the cause of the present so-called hard times. It remained, however, for Mr. Hearst to epitomize the main cause in the provocative article which appeared in Thursday's American.

"Over-speculation, over-capitalization and the failure to take advantage of the opportunity provided by increased profits in industry to devote the major part of these profits to higher wages, which would maintain the purchasing power of the public, puts the matter clearly, definitely and forcibly.



Carl Dreyfus

It may well be demonstrated that the failure of financial houses in New York was more due to the over-capitalization of companies in which they were interested and whose stock could not be adequately supported in a declining market.

JESSE HUBBARD, floor member of Gurnett & Co., sent a wire to all offices, saying: W. R. Hearst's analysis of the causes and effects of the stock market decline and general depression is the most important financial news to be given the public in regard to present conditions.

HENRY P. SMITH, president of the Boston Flour & Grain Exchange. I believe that W. R. Hearst's editorial on the stock market's decline being caused by overcapitalization is fundamentally sound. If the industrial leaders had concentrated their efforts in aiding the purchasing power of the American people, present conditions would not exist.

SHERMAN GLEASON of J. H. Goddard & Co.—There is certainly truth in Mr. W. R. Hearst's statement that over-capitalization is responsible to a large degree for current depression. In the past two years many corporations have taken undue advantage of the conditions which allowed them to over-capitalize. Some, on the other hand, are in better shape, of course. Mr. Hearst's statement is highly constructive.

WILLIAM T. YETMAN, Yetman's Statistical Service—During every boom period there develops a certain amount of overcapitalization, due to over-optimism regarding future prospects for earnings. The over-capitalization of any particular corporation or industry is proven only by its demonstrated inability to make a fair profit on its capitalization during normal times.

At present we are in an industrial depression, due to world overproduction and consequent falling prices. Under these conditions, industries such as the motor industry, which was not deeply involved in capital expansion last year, are equally affected by the depression.

Overcapitalization is therefore a phase of the depression rather than its cause.

R. W.—McNEEL, director, McNeel's Financial Service and president of the McNeel Institute of Investment Education, Inc.—The statement by Mr. Hearst that the cause of the present business depression is over-capitalization more especially than over-speculation is an interesting viewpoint, but I believe it touches on only one of the many causes of the business depression. Even if a considerably larger part of the earnings of industry had been passed on to the wage earners, thereby increasing their buying power, we would still have had a business depression. The over speculation which culminated last year was not due primarily to huge corporate earnings which were capitalized by over-optimism. In fact, never before in the history of this country has a mad speculation in stocks been carried on so absolutely regardless of the earnings of corporations as in 1928 and 1929. This speculation was based not on huge earnings but on a blind faith in the future of the United States on the part of a multitude of American people in whom the speculative or gambling instinct is deeply and indelibly implanted. The chief cause of the depression is not that the wages of industrial workers were not raised, but that the real wages of some of our greatest industries have been tremendously reduced. With cotton 10c a pound, wheat 75c a bushel, sugar 1c a pound, silver 55c an ounce, and copper 10c a pound, the real wages and the buying power of those tremendous industries have been so reduced that they cannot absorb the normal volume of the products of our manufacturing industries and an increase in the wages of the workers in industrial pursuits would never have made up the void. We have prosperity only when the products of various industries can be exchanged for those of other industries on an equitable basis.

RT. REV. SAMUEL G. BABCOCK, D. D., former head of a large business concern in Rhode Island and the present head of the Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts: I have not forgot my business training and Mr. Hearst's reference to overspeculation and over capitalization appeals to me as being exactly the truth from other statements I have read about. He has presented them in a new light. He has made it clearer than ever upon these features that have had much to do with helping us to account for business depression.

There is this to be added, however. We have overworked the installment plan. People who used them in prosperity have been pinched in reverses. This is not anything against the plan itself, but it is one of the causes which has had something to do with that of business. Let us be hopeful and let us try to recover from fear and lack of achievement of doing more to the interests of good business.

OCEAN FLIERS REACH LONDON

Croyden, Eng., Oct. 11 (AP)—The transatlantic airplane Columbia completed its voyage from Harbor Grace, N. F., when it landed on the Croyden airwield at 10:53 a. m. (E. S. T.) today.

An overnight landing in the Scilly Islands was the only break in the first successful Canadian flight across the Atlantic ocean. The Columbia took off from Treseo at 8:02 a. m. and traversed the ocean over Land End, Penzance and Plymouth.

The Canadian-American airmen, Capt. J. Errol Boyd and Lieut. Harry Connor, set their veteran transatlantic plane down before a large crowd, which had been swelling steadily since noon.

Charles A. Levine, with whom Clarence Chamberlain flew the Columbia on her first transatlantic crossing, was first to greet the airmen.

drink poisonous concoctions of which they know nothing.

Scotland has gangs and gang wars, according to Glasgow reports.

Religious bias, lack of employment, lack of control by parents, AND GIRLS are the main causes of Scotch gang warfare.

Whiskey, bootleg or otherwise, racketeering, have nothing to do with it.

Protestant-Catholic rivalry in Scotland is one cause, and the Scotch girls "uncertain, coy and hard to please" another. When a girl leaves one gang for another the two gangs fight. The gangsters are very young, many have never worked in their lives, employment being slack. Fighting provides an outlet for their energies.

Mary Garden Returns From Europe

New York, Oct. 11—Mary Garden, the prima donna, hurled a taunt at married women in America yesterday when she arrived here on the liner Bremen from Europe. When asked if she was bringing back a husband from the continent, Mary replied:

"I haven't a husband and I don't intend to get one. Women marry because they don't want to work. They are lazy and lack ambition."

She added: "I am a busy woman and marriage would mean I would have to abandon my career. But if I ever decide to settle down I intend to marry some good old Anglo-Saxon."

Miss Garden spent her summer touring Germany and Switzerland.

BOY AND GIRL ARE DEAD IN A SUICIDE PACT

Locked in Death Embrace In Parked Auto in Which a Shotgun Is Found

Westerly, R. I., Oct. 11 (AP)—In a lonely road winding among the huge sand dunes that dot the Rhode Island coast, George Haggerty and Hilda Nowell, both 18, of Westerly, culminated their romance of several years in a suicide pact.

They were found dead today in Haggerty's automobile parked in the road a mile and a half from Quonochontaug Park. The girl's head was in Haggerty's lap and her arms were around him. A double-barrelled shotgun with both barrels empty was found in the car, together with a note written by Haggerty. Police said the note indicated Haggerty had shot the girl and then killed himself.

Thomas Carnova and Wayland Currie, Bradford, R. I., hunters, discovered the double tragedy when they passed the parked automobile for the second time and noticed that the bodies of the boy and girl were in the same position as when they had passed before, several hours earlier.

Both Haggerty and Miss Nowell had been missing from their homes since Thursday, when they had left together for an automobile ride. Police believe they had been dead since Friday morning.

A preliminary examination of the bodies showed death had been caused in each case by gunshot wounds. It was not believed death had been instantaneous, but rather that the boy and girl had lived for an hour or more after Haggerty had discharged both barrels of the shotgun.

A .22-caliber rifle, fully loaded, was also found in the car, indicating that Haggerty was taking no chance that one of the shotgun discharges might fail of its purpose.

Haggerty was a student at Westerly high school last year and played football on the school team. He had not returned to school this year, being an apprentice to the plumbing trade. He had been a regular escort of Miss Nowell at social affairs here for several years.

Officer Budgets $40 to Provide for 13

Boston's kindest "cop," the father of 11 motherless children, today revealed how a patrolman's salary of $40.27 per week can be stretched to feed and clothe his young brood, his sister and himself.

Patrolman Mangue T. Nelson of 7 Merlin st., Dorchester, who was transferred from the Hyde Park station to Station 16 in the Back Bay because of his kindness to two children during the Legion parade last Tuesday, explained that his weekly salary is budgeted to meet expenses.

Miss Julia Nelson, sister of Patrolman Nelson and "mother" to the children, takes charge of the funds.

"It is rather difficult," explained Miss Nelson, "but an our budget of $15 for the home, and the balance for clothing and other necessities we are getting along nicely and waiting for better times."

The greatest hero in the eyes of the children is their policeman "daddy."

Patrolman Nelson was detailed from the Hyde Park station to duty along the route of the great Legion Parade. When the lunch wagon for the police officers came along, he gave up his lunch to two hungry children sitting on the curbstone watching the Legionnaires pass.

This act of kindness was brought to the attention of Commissioner Hultman by a bystander. Nelson was immediately transferred to the Back Bay station, where he is in a position to earn a larger salary by accepting detail duties. At present he is patrolling the Public Gardens.

U. S. Steel closed only a point lower. Declines of 2 to 4, however, included Consolidated Gas, Electric Power & Light, North American, American Telephone and Union Carbide.

Exhibition Will Portray History of the Crafts

MRS. J. TEMPLETON COOLIDGE, chairman of the committee which is arranging the fifth exhibition of Craftsmen-at-Work, to be held in the foyer and ballroom of the Hotel Statler from October 28 to November 8, plans to have a number of features which will carry the story of the crafts back to the earliest days of this country in the work of the pioneers and also work of the Indians in the southwest. In addition to booths in which will be represented the more familiar crafts, there will be a valuable loan exhibition of contemporary needlework.

THE TERCENTENARY FEATURE of primitive life is a pioneer kitchen, planned by Mr. William Mayo of Beacon Hill, which will stand in contrast to life in a Navajo Village, where there will be sheep-shearing, dyeing, spinning and weaving of five different kinds of tribal rugs, silver work and a very unusual exhibition of the art of sand-painting which the Navajo until very recently kept as a secret of the ritual of his chants.

MRS. PHILIP DANA ORCUTT will be in charge of the Navajo booth. New Junior League Dining Rooms to Open Next Tuesday

THE NEW JUNIOR LEAGUE dining rooms will open on Tuesday, October 14, for members and their guests, for luncheon, tea and dinner. Everything has been planned to make it a perfect place to lunch and it is to be hoped that members will show their appreciation of the splendid work which has been done by the league committees in arranging such a delightful place by using it frequently. It is also urged that out-of-town members make it their rendezvous when lunching in town. There was a rumor about last year that some members felt they were not welcome when using the league luncheroms. This was not the case and all members are most urgently asked to help in one way by using the facilities of the league's new home.

THE DINING ROOMS ARE arranged to seat 80 at varying tables; the cooking, presided over by a French chef, is appetisingly appealing, and the comfortable lounges lend themselves as a convenient meeting-place, as well as an ideal spot to pursue an interesting conversation over one's coffee. Dinner is served week-days from 6:30 to 8, and people bringing large parties, or those wishing to dine later than 8, are asked to telephone for reservations. There will be tea daily in the lounge. The guests' dining-room, which may be rented for large luncheon and dinner parties, has already been engaged for several such occasions.

Kellogg Girl Is Bride

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER
Universal Service Society Editor

New York, Oct. 11—Quality rather than quantity was the social order yesterday in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church when Jane Brownell Kellogg, daughter of the Charles W. Kelloggs of 1021 Park ave., knelt before the nuptial altar and promised to "love and honor" Herbert H. Corbin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Corbin of New Haven, Ct.

Representative members of Gotham's upper ten and fashionables who reside in the Berkshires, not to mention outstanding personages in Boston's Back Bay set, were in evidence when Jane, attired in her bridal finery, walked up the aisle to the altar on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage.

For the occasion the bride donned a gown of deep ivory satin made with long, tight sleeves and a court train. Her tulle veil was framed with old rose point lace and was arranged on the coiffure in mantilla fashion. She completed the ensemble by carrying a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

The new Mrs. Corbin, who is a member of the Junior League of this city, made her debut two years ago in Boston, where her family formerly resided. Herbert is a graduate of the Yale law school, where his father is a professor, and he is at present associated with the firm of Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam and Roberts in this city.

Republican Women Will Hear Discussions on Chief Political Issues

By NANCY BREWSTER

With the season on for the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts, weekly programs are again announced by the director of publicity, Miss Rebekah Hobbs.

The controversy over the type of steel trap used in hunting which last year absorbed the time and interest of Bay State clubwomen, is on their early club programs again at this time since it is to be voted on at the November election.

DISCUSSIONS PLANNED

Republican clubwomen are interested in the subject and will hear both sides of the question next Wednesday evening. Introduced by the political department of the club, Mrs. Frederick E. Judd, director, Howard Noble, managing director of the Anti-Steel Trap League of America, Massachusetts division, will defend the question, "Shall the Present Type of Steel Trap Be Outlawed in Massachusetts?" and Dr. John W. Ruskin, member of the Massachusetts Association of Fur Resources, will speak against it. The program will take place in the assembly hall of the club at 8 p. m.

Next Tuesday, "Russia in the Summer of 1930" will be discussed by Robert Lincoln O'Brien, who last summer made a special trip to study industrial conditions abroad. This lecture will be given at 2:30 p. m., also in the assembly hall. The activities department, Mrs. Alexander Lincoln, director, has charge of this program.

DRY LAW AS TOPIC

And again the controversial prohibition question will be heard when Julian Codman and Thomas Nixon Carver, two well known talkers on this subject, present their views to the Republican women at a meeting scheduled for next Thursday morning at 11 as part of the regular Thursday morning political programs sponsored by Mrs. Frederick E. Judd.

Since the prohibition question comes up for voting next month, the question will be outlined in great length by these two men. Mr. Codman, general counsel for the Constitutional Liberty League of Massachusetts, will speak in favor of repeal. Prof. Carver, of the department of economics at Harvard University, will speak against repeal.

Law Enforcement to Be Lecture Subject Before Milton Club

Speaking about enforcement, the Milton Law Enforcement League announces a public meeting on "The Text of the State Enforcement Act" for next Thursday, to be held in the Milton town hall. A musical program will be given from 7:30 to 8:15, and at that time the speaking will begin.

On the program will be H. Lelaron Sampson of the Suffolk Bar, Dr. Richard C. Cabot, Mrs. William H. Brown and Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes.

Education Week to Be Observed Here by State Clubwomen

American Education Week, which this year will be celebrated November 10-16, offers an opportunity for service, clubwomen throughout the country interpret. Consequently the women's clubs will play a conspicuous part in its observance, acquainting the public with the activities, ideals, and achievements of education.

Clubwomen are asked to take cognisance of these topics, around which study programs throughout Education Week may be worked: "The Schools and the Enrichment of Human Life," "How Schools Promote Patriotism and World Understanding," "The Schools of Yesterday," What the Schools Have Helped the Individual to Achieve," "What the Schools Have Helped America to Achieve," "The Schools of Tomorrow and the Future of America."

These program suggestions are made by Dr. Willis A. Sutton, president of the National Education Association, in Clubwoman, the official organ of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

City Club Members' Health Examination Results Announced

Women City Club members owe their health to a variety of things, it seems. From the records of the health examinations made of members of the Women's City Club last year, these findings have been made and announced officially for the first time to the press bulletin of the club.

Of the 48 examined, half the number preferred a woman examiner.

The average age of the group was 53.

As to the amount of exercise, of this number, 32 mentioned walking; 9, housework; 3, gardening, and one member talked of "shelling corn" as exercise.

Their favorite diversion is the theater, with reading and music second choice.

Of the group, 31 admitted they suffered from headaches.

Only three women said they had many colds, while five said they had none.

Twenty-nine of the full number sleep from six to seven hours each night, while 13 take eight or more hours of rest. Only one suffered from insomnia, she said.

Dr. Mary R. Lakeman of the club's health committee will answer further questions about the health examinations conducted at the clubhouse, it is announced, since a repetition of these examinations is to take place this November.

"History of Amherst" Lecture Will Open Woman's Club Year

In yellow and gold, the year book of the Amherst Woman's Club reached this department and between the colorful colors was announced the Oct. 13 meeting which is to be in charge of the club's history section. An illustrated lecture on "Pageant of the History of Amherst" by Mrs. Ana Phillips See will not only entertain the club members but inform them as well.

The meeting is to be held in Jones Library and open to the public.

Eight days later at the Hills Memorial Club House, Mrs. Joseph C. Cook, club president, will preside over a reception to the new members at 3 p. m. and the annual for club members at 4 p. m. 200 Amherst women de[illegible] time and energies [illegible] causes sponsored by the Woman's Club.

Two's Company in Colors for Fall

By ANN ARDEN

CHARMING DUETS of color distinguish many of the smartest new clothes and they're popular. No wonder—you can wear two of your favorite colors, instead of one, or choose two tones of a shade that's becoming, thereby making it doubly so.

* * *

THE HEAVIER silks of this season lend themselves gracefully to drapings, and surplice lines, while the sleeves and necklines are capable of varied contrast and detail. The frock's trimming color often lines winged sections near the wrists, and tighter sleeves frequently combine the frock fabric and the trimming fabric almost half and half.

* * *

BROWN AND PINK is a smart combination in any case, but when it is used in the manner in which this frock employs it, the dust is ultra chic. Heavy faille crepe in dark brown is the material, the underskirt pleated back and front, the long tunic softly draped to high front line and tied in gypsy girdle.

* * *

THE SURPLICE neckline is outlined in rose pink georgette. Its petal edges embroidered in small white and rose beads. The double sleeves have a row of rose pink buttons accenting the tight under cuff. The hat is brown felt, symetrically tucked, and draped to low back line. Bands of grosgrain ribbon cross in front.

* * *

"BRIDGE FROCK" designates a very important wardrobe essential for fall and winter. It suggests the type of frock that everyone must have one or more of—in varying degrees of formality, according to her own social program—and which serves for other occasions besides afternoon bridge, of course. One feels extremely well-dressed in the new bridge frock. It is dressier—even when it is for simple affairs—than it has been for some seasons.

WHETHER THE beret could possibly survive the summer season, being so heavily engaged by young and not so young for activities of every sort, is settled definitely. The beret is with us, though perhaps we should say in lesser quantity than usual. By lesser we imply not fewer numbers but fewer inches. Agnes' pancake beret is scarcely nothing, perched on the back of a well-coiffed head.

3 CALIFORNIA CITIES TO FETE MR. HEARST

Chicago, Oct. 11—William Randolph Hearst was en route today to the Pacific Coast, where he will be honored in great civic receptions such as the popular demonstration in Chicago Thursday and those which were accorded him earlier in New York and Boston.

In Los Angeles, in San Francisco and in Oakland, he has been invited to be the official guest of those municipalities in a welcome home. His reception, as described in the invitations tendered him, will be a testimonial not alone to the part he and his publications have had in the upbuilding of the Western cities but will be a tribute to the fearless principles of journalism which brought about the exposure in his newspapers of the secret Anglo-French treaty two years ago.

AFFRONT TO NATION

It was for this that the French government recently characterized his name as hostile to France and asked him to leave that country.

From coast to coast, leading Americans have branded the act an affront to an outstanding American citizen and to the United States as well.

Veterans' organizations throughout the country have joined with civic authorities and national statesmen in expressions of resentment that France, to whose savior American soldiers sent by the hundreds of thousands only a few years ago, now should offer this indignity to a foremost American.

Mr. Hearst, discussing the publication of the secret treaty at the reception given him by Chicagoans at Soldier Field, said it was done "for what I believed to be the best interests of my country" and that he would do it "again tomorrow even if I were to be expelled from every country in Europe for doing it."

COUNTRY PROSPEROUS

After the celebration and before he boarded a train for California, Mr. Hearst discussed business conditions saying:

"Business is good in California, New York and Chicago. This country of ours is a prosperous country right now. It may not be as prosperous as it was last year, or as prosperous as it will be next year, but the majority of the people today have money and have business, and if they will attend to their business and keep out of the hands of get-rich-quick speculators, and have confidence in their country and in themselves they will soon bring back a greater prosperity than we have ever had before.

Don't get cold feet, don't contract, don't cut wages, don't discharge men.

"Keep up your business, be satisfied with a little less profit, make things as good as possible and sell them as cheap as possible, and sell and manufacture as much as possible.

"If you have a good product or a good stock tell the public about it. Make them want it. They have the money to buy anything they really want. If they don't buy your product it's your fault and not theirs.

"This is still the most prosperous nation in the world, and business is getting better every day."

Lawrence Tibbett to Sing at Hearst Banquet

Los Angeles, Oct. 11—Citizens who have reserved places at the testimonial banquet to William Randolph Hearst at the Hotel Biltmore next Tuesday night, were elated to learn today that Lawrence Tibbett, the great baritone, and Miss Grace Moore, brilliant soprano, were to sing at the banquet.

The list of speakers insures eloquence. Oscar Lawler will be toastmaster. John C. Austin, chairman of the committee that is arranging the banquet, will welcome Mr. Hearst. Louis B. Mayer, who is chairman of the banquet committee, will be one of the speakers. Another will be Antonio Entenza, past national commander of the United Spanish War Veterans. Mr. Entenza has lived in Los Angeles but a year, coming here from Detroit, but his fame as an orator is nation-wide. Mr. Hearst will be the only other speaker in addition to those named.

Bay Cities Speed Plans for Civic Receptions

San Francisco, Oct. 11—On both sides of the bay today official preparations were being speeded for the civic receptions to be extended next week to William Randolph Hearst by San Francisco and Oakland.

Commissioner Charles I. Anderson will act as chairman of arrangements in Oakland October 17 for entertaining the publisher, whose patriotic devotion to traditional American principles recently brought him official honors from many cities.

The committee met today to approve specific plans for the Oakland reception and arrange for the participation of scores of civic organizations which have requested representation. In Oakland, as in San Francisco, members of veterans organizations will play a prominent part in the civic welfare.

The welcome San Francisco will extend to Mr. Hearst, it was learned tonight, will be augmented by a committee representing California Lodge No. 1 of the Knights of Pythias and the Grand Lodge of the State.

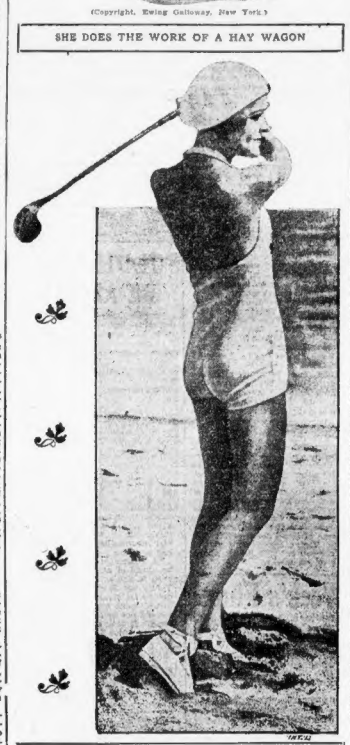
Modern Woman Keeps Pace With World Progress

(Copyright, Ewing Galloway, New York.)

SHE DOES THE WORK OF A HAY WAGON



HER LIFE IS ALL JOY

The American Weekly, with nearly six million circulation every Sunday, by far the greatest circulation in the world, pays as it should especial attention to the mothers of men. It pays attention, also to the DAUGHTERS, the SISTERS, the WIVES and the SWEETHEARTS of men.

In the American Weekly which forms part of tomorrow's edition of the Boston Sunday Advertiser, you will be especially interested in a scientific study of women, ancient and modern, occupying two full pages most interestingly illustrated.

Few realize the part women play in the lives of men and in the life action and progress of the world.

Woman takes care of man in his childhood, comforts him with her companionship in his years of strength, protects and humors him in old age. Usually he is rather ungrateful.

Woman, as you see in the picture at the top of this page, can in time of need play the part of a hay wagon. The picture here shows a peasant woman of the Italian Dolomites carrying a load of closely-packed hay that would crush many a strong man.

The second picture of the young lady enjoying sun and air with her golf clubs, shows a modern American married woman of excellent social standing, and be it said, in passing, extremely "easy to look at."

Both of these women are doing what they can to help the human race. The Italian woman carrying hay feeds horse and cows that provide for the family.

The American young woman swinging the golf club is building up health that will do something or other remarkable sometime. She may be too busy to do it, but her son will do it or the son of her daughter will do it.

One page of tomorrow's American Weekly is devoted to Einstein, understood by twelve men in the world, and so wise he can give a headache to the 15,999,999,988 of us.

There is a strange island of St. Kilda off the coast of Scotland so lonely, so poor that even the Scotch have left it.

You can imagine how poor it must be. But YOU might go there some day, sink a well and find oil. Then the Scotch will go back. The American Weekly has a page about that island.

Tomorrow's American Weekly tells about the strange art of the descendants of King Solomon and the strange antics of a young colored lady named Josephine Baker, who allowed her pet panther to spring out of her box at this theater onto the head of a flute player in the orchestra.

A new airplane is invented in Germany with a V-shaped "flying wing."

That's important scientifically. The American Weekly prints a page about that. In short, everything marvelous, everything scientific, everything to stimulate thought, speculation and interest in life and affairs is in the American Weekly and offered to intelligent readers.

That is why it has nearly 6,000,000 of them, about twice as many as any other weekly publication in the United States.

Throngs Line Funeral Route of R-101 Victims

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—In the sunshine of a chill October morning, the 48 bodies of victims of the R-101's destruction in France last Sunday today were taken from Westminster Hall to commence their last journey to Cardington.

Promptly at 10 a. m. the funeral procession, headed by a Royal Air Force band, commenced the march through silent streets, which had been closed to ordinary traffic and which were lined by thousands unable to pass the coffins yesterday when the bodies lay in state in Westminster Hall.

Comrades of the dead men marched in the procession, men of the third watch of the R-101 and the crew of her sister-ship, the R-100, were joined with high officials of the air council, the army council, and the admiralty.

Premier MacDonald, Dominion premiers, and representatives of foreign governments joined the cortege as it moved through the crowds to Euston station for transport to Bedford.

Another solemn procession was arranged at Bedford to escort remains of the men to their common grave at the nearby airfield.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commandant of the Graf Zeppelin, who arrived in London yesterday evening, acted as special representative of the German government at ceremonies today. He placed a wreath on the grave at Cardington for the German government.

Police were kept busy removing numbers of fainting women from the crowd. At one point half a dozen women collapsed.

When the boarding was not promptly removed the following day a group of Legionnaires called upon Paine's requesting that the boards be taken down and expressing appreciation of the display which had attracted much attention.

CARROLL URGES LOWER PRICES FOR SEATS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

IT WAS ONE of our minor poets who remarked that there were more ways of killing a cat than smearing butter on its tail. Earl Carroll, whose personal interest in the theater is exceeded only by his investments, might have spoken those words. By this time he knows that the old-fashioned routine which once guaranteed audience and profit to the drama is no more reliable than the Fourteenth and Eighteenth Amendments to our well known and most revered Constitution.

* * *

FOR A GOOD many months the giants of the present day drama have been playing family physician and making diagnoses of the drama's ills; also they have been scribbling homeopathic prescriptions. In the press agent's monthly bulletin, The Quill, words of wisdom have poured from aching hearts. They have described the ills, pointed the remedy. Every word of it has been what we call "good stuff," and all of it from fertile typewriters; mentioning casually those of Sam Harris, George M. Cohan, John Golden, William A. Brady and Brock Pemberton. Possibly a few others may have escaped our memory but, in any event, we have read pieces in The Quill and enjoyed them. It was all constructive—every line of it—and desperately theoretical.

Nicholas Young

WITHOUT SO MUCH as a cautious warning in advance, Earl Carroll walked into this editor's office on Thursday and in the fewest possible words plunged into the dreadful case of the drama and produced his own new remedy. There is nothing homeopathic in Mr. Carroll's plan of operation—it is magnificently surgical. The theaters are inadequate, he insisted, because they are too small. We need bigger playhouses and lower prices, he insisted. It might have been gathered rather simply from Mr. Carroll's outburst that "Sketch Book," now at the Shubert, and doing a nice business at the regular tariff in such tatings, would be raking in the shekels in prodigious amount at half the price, or even less, if the Shubert could boast the seating capacity of the Metropolitan just across the street. These comparisons are Mr. Carroll's, not mine.

* * *

NO PRODUCER of what we like to call "big shows" has more faith in his own ideas than Earl Carroll. Even in failure he sticks to his guns. Therefore, by his suggested remedy for better times, it is no surprise that his own Earl Carroll Theater in New York is being torn down to make room for more customers. More seats and lower prices—that is the Earl Carroll dictum. Mr. Carroll told me without the blinking of an eyelash that when his new temple of womanly loveliness and the subscribed arts was completed, he was positive that such revues as "Sketch Book" and "Vanities" could be successfully produced and carried on at a two-dollar price for the best seats. It is revolutionary, of course, but that is exactly what the Manhattan playgoer will discover as his chief temptation in another year.

MR. CARROLL MAKES no secret of his problems; he knows, Ike Ziegfeld, that unless business pours in upon his attractions in heavy volume the storm clouds are flying. His own quaint idea is the building of theaters to fit his attractions; a chance for a square deal to the producer, who pays and pays, and finds it only a commercial speculation, and a brighter opportunity to the customer, who, in these times particularly, is entitled to one place in something besides farm products and wearing apparel.

Looking Ahead

OCTOBER 20—
"Smiles," a new Ziegfeld production, at the Colonial.
"Berkeley Square" at the Wilbur.
"To What Red Hell" at the Copley.

NOVEMBER 3—
"Street Scene" at the Wilbur.

MUCH MONEY MAKES THE MARE GO

Howard Hughes, the 23-year-old producer and director of "Hell's Angels," now in its second month at the Tremont, has an interesting explanation of why he spent three years of his youth and $4,000,000 of his money in making his masterpiece.

"You know you can make a picture half-heartedly and slop through it," he said. "Or, as is seldom the case, you can try to get absolutely everything out of the story, endeavoring to make every scene bigger and better than called for in the script.

"I set out to make 'Hell's Angels' in this manner because I believed I would never find another story with such great possibilities for spectacle.

"You can't make every picture this way, because it costs too much and takes too long, but I felt that during my life I wanted to make one picture in this manner, sparing neither time nor expense, thinking only of making the most realistic picture ever produced."

MISS LOVE IN PARK FILM

The Park tops its double feature bill with "Conspiracy," a mystery-melodrama. Bessie Love heads the cast and performs ample ndidly. Ned Sparks is seen as a wealthy, eccentric author, whose hobby is the solving of current crimes. Hugh Trevor, as a young reporter, plays opposite Miss Love. Others in the cast are: Rita La Roy, Ivan Lebedoff, Gertrude Howard, Otto Matieson, Walter Long, Al Keckley, Donald Mackenzie, George Irving and Bert Moorehouse.

Bessie Love

The second feature on the bill is "Canyon Hawks," with Yakima Canutt, Buzz Barton, Wally Wales, and Bob Reeves in leading roles. Several comedy reels complete the program.

NO FORMALITY NOTED HERE

If movie fans believe that picture directors are gruff, belligerent individuals who are treated with trembling respect and fearsome awe by the actors they work with, they are wrong in the case of Ernst Lubitsch. This picture-maker recently completed "Monte Carlo" in which Jeanette MacDonald and Jack Buchanan are co-featured, and which is now at the Olympia and Uptown.

During the making of this musical romance Miss MacDonald called Lubitsch "Ernie" in retaliation for his frequent references to her as "Mike." Buchanan was "Mr. Book" to Lubitsch, who found it difficult to master the intricate Scottish vowels of the London favorite's name. Buchanan in turn referred to Lubitsch as "Luby."

The same informality and friendliness in the custom for many other directors, for it is only outside of Hollywood that directors are represented as imperialists.

BABE LULLED TO SLEEP BY THE HINDU

It may be paradoxical to discuss birth and death in the same sentence, but when Death is depicted in a successful play by a distinguished actor, it becomes a matter of interest to know his background, which obviously includes the facts of his birth. This preamble leads to the statement that Philip Merivale, star of "Death Takes a Holiday," at the Plymouth, while classified as an English actor, is really an Indian—not red, but a native of that India which provides territory and trouble for the British Empire.

Although he is praised for his perfect English diction, Merivale did not speak that language from birth. Before he could pronounce the words of his ancestors' vocabulary, he spoke Hindustanee. This was due to the fact that his father was a civil engineer in Rohtutis, near Mankpur, India, and the Hindu nurse who surrounded him had more influence than did his parents.

When they found it impossible to make him give up the words of his Ayah for those of his mother, they shipped him off to England. Their hope was to educate him as a 100 per cent Englishman who would embark and succeed in a mercantile career.

Although many of his forebears had been interested in the theater, none had been, so to speak "on the stage." His great grandfather was a confrere of Lord Byron and adapted several plays for the great Edmund Keane. An uncle, Herman Merivale, had been a well known dramatist of the 70's.

Had he been unavailable for the role of Prince Sirki in "Death Takes a Holiday," it is doubtful if the play would have opened when it did in New York, the day after Christmas, 1929.

Actor Gets Salary Boost in Pictures

Ted Healey, starring in "Soup to Nuts," now at the Modern and Beacon, chose his profession entirely as a matter of salary. How well he chose may be judged from an engagement at the Palace in New York, where he received $6500 a week, resulting in a Fox Movietone contract to appear as the featured comedian in "Soup to Nuts" at $7500 a week.

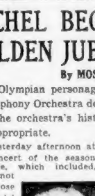
HENSCHEL BEGINS SYMPHONY GOLDEN JUBILEE SEASON

By MOSES SMITH

Those Olympian personages who shape the destiny of the Boston Symphony Orchestra decided that since this is the fiftieth season of the orchestra's history a Golden Jubilee celebration would be appropriate.

And so yesterday afternoon at the first concert of the season the audience, which included, very likely, not a tithe of those who would have liked to come, saw an oldish man, with step not infirm, with a goodly crop of hair still on his head, come onto the platform, before the assembled band. And the audience, breaking into its first enthusiastic round of applause—and cheers!—of the afternoon, got its first surprise. For while everyone was aware that this was Sir George Henschel, first conductor of the Symphony Orchestra half a century ago, now summoned from his home in England to conduct the opening pair of concerts of this season, few had expected so well preserved an individual. A man who had passed the mark of four score should have been, by common notion, bent and weary. Whereas this man's tread, if not the nimble, aggressive step of the youth, was at least the leisurely pace of the middle-aged.



Sir George Henschel

Some of us had been prepared for the exquisite simplicity of the man. But most of the audience, hearing Serge Koussevitzky deliver the opening remarks for the occasion, with a fulsome eulogy for Maj. Henry Lee Higginson and Sir George, must have been surprised as well as amused to see this veteran of music fairly wriggle in embarrassment.

And then—wonder of wonders!—when he took the baton to conduct a program that was almost a duplicate of that other program of half a century ago, when the concerts began their existence! For here was no "time-beating," though the quality of the music for the most part would have excused a mere ceremonious attitude. And here was no perfunctory gesturing, which was all we had a right to expect from a man of 80, no matter how brilliant a musician he had been in his youth.

Sir George took nothing for granted, was never perfunctory. He gave of himself everything that he could; commanded the best efforts of the great orchestra before him; re-animated music that had become stale or neglected. He was, in short, an interpreter and an artist.

PHILIP MERIVALE
MR. MERIVALE does a stellar job in "Death Takes a Holiday" now at the Plymouth. Charles Schmidt pen-and-inks his impression of the splendid actor. The star makes Death live.

MOODS THERE, AND TENSES AS WELL

Jed Harris has performed a singular service in his production of Anton Chekhov's "Uncle Vanya," at the Wilbur for one more week.

In no English translation of Chekhov are there to be found any stage directions. But rather than accept the conventional melancholy mood of the Slav in supplying these, Mr. Harris offers a tragi-comic interpretation, high-lighted with grace, dexterity and merriment. The stereotyped, pessimistic mold inevitably accepted of the Russ is abandoned for a lucid and interesting version charged with the humors that distinguished Chekhov's original manuscript.

In selecting his cast Mr. Harris chose actors and actresses not noted for their solemnity but rather for their animation. Foremost of these is the airy Lillian Gish. The other players are Walter Connolly, Osgood Perkins, Zita Johann, Eugene Powers, Kate Mayhew, Eduardo Cianelli, Isabel Irving and Harold Johnsrood.

Had Producer Harris hewed further to the Slavic mood he would dim the lights on the stage until the characters in the play appear through a dusk. But as Mr. Harris rightly saw Chekhov's play as a comedy, so he has seen to it that its personages are not shadowed by darkness.

The acting version of "Uncle Vanya" in the Harris production was made by Rose Caylor. Miss Caylor worked from two accepted translations and from the original Russian. The liberties that she took with Chekhov were few. Her knowledge of Russian enables her to enliven scenes that were either obscure or labored in other translations, to invigorate the dialogue, and to give it pungency and ardor.

AUBREY SMITH HAS LEAD IN MISS DAVIES' FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Oct. 11—Between reading cards on flower oaskets, opening telegrams, answering telephone calls and receiving her friends, Marion Davies had a busy day following her return from New York.

She only made a flying visit to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, but while there she learned that Aubrey Smith, who created the role on the stage of the father in "The Bachelor Father," is on his way from England. Smith has been signed by Irving Thalberg to play opposite Marion in the screen version of this production.

* * *

Marion had all of us interested in the play she bought abroad, "The Way to Treat a Woman." She didn't want to say too much about it because, as she says, it is an original idea and something different. While the play sounded interesting, most of us were more engrossed with the many clothes Marion brought back to Hollywood. Wait until she wears some of them in "The Bachelor Father." She'll have all of us taking notes and trying to copy them. The best part of these smart frocks is that they are all becoming and that's more than we can say about many of the modern costumes these days.

Clara Bow, armed with plenty of advice, sets sail for New York tomorrow night. If she gets in difficulties it will have to be enroute, for all of her bosses are already in New York waiting to keep an eye on the girl who just naturally cannot stay out of the headlines.

Clara's late gambling adventure will hold her in good stead for her next picture, "No Limit," has a sequence that deals with this wicked pastime. Norman Foster, husband of Claudette Colbert, and a mighty good actor, plays opposite the Little Bow. He appeared in "Young Man of Manhattan," and Paramount thought so well of him he has just signed a new contract.

One of the most constant picture makers in the film business is M. H. Hoffman of Liberty Productions. For 12 years, M. H. has been in and out of the films, first starting with some star or play of interest. Having just finished "Ex-Flame," which is said to be very good by those who have seen it, he is now getting ready to make "Mother's Millions" with Mae Robson. While Miss Robson is the star and Hoffman is concentrating on her, he is greatly interested in Billie Haggerty, age four. Billie did so nobly in "Ex-Flame" he has been given a contract and says Mr. Hoffman: "He has all the charm of Davey Lee and Jackie Coogan of six years ago."

There were many wagers made after James Whale left for New York that he would not return to Hollywood, the gossip being that he and Phil Goldstone had never agreed on "Journey's End" and tomorrow night. If she gets in difficulties it will have to be enroute, for all of her bosses are already in New York waiting to keep an eye on the girl who just naturally cannot stay out of the headlines.

Universal is distributing its production work among five associated producers. Erwin Gelsey, who has been in charge of the scenario department, becomes an associated producer. SOLDIER MAY BE AFRAID

Francis Compton, the officious detective whose deductions unravel the mystery in "Shooting Shadows," now at the Copley, before he entered upon a stage career was a commissioned officer in the English Army.

"As a matter of fact I went into the army at the request of my father," declared Mr. Compton. "It had stayed in the army I am sure I would have been interested in the theater one way or another, as I always had a desire for the footlights.

"A soldier is trained not to be afraid of anything and when I first spoke my lines on stage I could not be heard five yards away. It took me a full act to get my voice back to normal and after that I went along nicely."

Francis Compton

This is Mr. Compton's third season with the Copley. As Mr. Clive's foil in "Shooting Shadows," he furnishes many of the laughs and contributes much to the thrills.

CHEVALIER IS THE STAR

With a pre-view of "Playboy of Paris" the premiere, incidentally, of this latest Maurice Chevalier film—the Metropolitan Theater will stage a midnight show beginning promptly at midnight tomorrow. Prior to the showing of the picture, Arthur Martel will give his usual Sunday night organ broadcast. Patrons coming at 11:30 will have the opportunity of hearing Mr. Martel play.

"The Playboy of Paris" is said to be the greatest film in which Chevalier has yet appeared. It gives the popular French star plenty of opportunity to display his subtle humor and his unusual vocal abilities. In addition there will be shown a late news reel, cartoon comedy and other features.

SHADOW OF LINCOLN IS TO SPEAK

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

FOR A MAJOR SCREEN event Columbus Day brings the premiere of "Abraham Lincoln," at the Majestic. This will take place Monday afternoon. There will be notables in attendance, but for the lovers of the best the chief importance lies in the fact that the production bears the brand of D. W. Griffith, pioneer and one of the greatest of them all.

* * *

MR. GRIFFITH HAS expressed himself as well pleased with his handiwork. Since he is a conscientious worker, and has never been known to speak other than his honest conviction, his dictum may be regarded as recommendation of "Abraham Lincoln" as topflight film fare. His past performances, of course, would lead one to the same conclusion. Mr. Griffith remains a great master of the true art of the motion picture. It was he that chose the able Walter Huston for the title role. Of his choice he says:

D. W. Griffith

"The ordinary good type actor who in other days would have been cast for Lincoln was sunk when confronted by this film's fine dialogue. An outstanding actor capable of reading lines with intelligence, sincerity and power—someone who could put them over—was necessary. Careful tests, undertaken a full year ago, fastened the honor upon Walter Huston. He did not look the part, but he could feel it and express it, which was the main thing. And when the time came he was the physical impersonation of the great President. That is what artistry can accomplish."

* * *

Mr. Griffith says that the coming of sound has rung the death knell for "dumb-bells in motion pictures."

"Employment of the human voice as an important factor in putting over the psychology of a situation, or registering the emotions, will bring the swan song for the beautiful but dumb," he says. "Only intelligent actors can meet the new standards that talking pictures are bringing in. And only intelligent writers can supply the right kind of dialogue, so we safely may anticipate pronounced improvement all along the line, with a higher order of entertainment in the popular theaters of the masses. This evolutionary movement will be automatic, and it is inevitable. I believe it will be welcomed by picture fans and will prove that we have all been wrong in our estimate of the public intelligence."

ODE FEATURE OF CONCERT

Dr. Serge Koussevitzky will make his first appearance in the 50th anniversary season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, at the second pair of concerts, next Friday and Saturday.

An ode dedicated to the orchestra in its 50th season, music by Edward Burlingame Hill, and poem by Robert Hillyer, will be performed at these concerts. A chorus from the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society will assist. Dr. Koussevitzky will open the program with an organ and a violin prelude of Bach, which Pick-Mangiagalli transcribed for string orchestra.

Double Keyboard Piano Used by Scotch Player

Winifred Christie, Scotch pianist, is returning to America with a remarkable new invention, the double-keyboard pianoforte, on which she will play in a recital in Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoon, October 26. The mechanism makes possible octaves by pressure upon single keys, two octave chords with one hand, and other new tonal possibilities which bring great harmonic enrichment.

"Royal Family"

"The Royal Family," now being made at the Paramount New York studio, under the direction of George Cukor and Cyril Gardner, and expected to be completed on Tuesday, will be released under a new title, it is understood.

Going Abroad

Fredric March will leave for Europe upon completing his role in "The Royal Family," returning around November 15 to appear opposite Claudette Colbert in a feature to be directed by Dorothy Arzner.

LASSIES GET COMEDY OUT OF LIFE

Farce comedy compounded by experts is the promise held out by "Those Three French Girls," the Cosmopolitan feature which is to be shown Monday at Loew's State. Such noted authors as P. G. Wodehouse, Dale Van Every, Arthur Freed and Richard Schayer collaborated to write the original story, continuity and dialogue from which the comedy was filmed. In point of exceptional interest this film is particularly noteworthy because of its introduction to the talking screen of Wodehouse's hilarious lines and the frank farce comedy treatment of the production.

Fifi Dorsay

Harry Beaumont, one of the talking screen's foremost directors, directed the new feature. He was responsible for the successes of "The Broadway Melody," "The Floradora Girl" and "Our Blushing Brides."

The leading man of the new production, Reginald Denny, is one of the silent screen stars who has won new popularity in talking films. He recently played in Cecil B. DeMille's "Madam Satan" and with Grace Moore in "Jenny Lind." Miss Dorsay, the vivacious French actress who plays with him, made her picture debut in "They Had to See Paris" and last was seen in "Hot for Paris" and "Women Everywhere."

In the supporting cast are Cliff (Ukulele Ike) Edwards, Yola d'Avril, Sandra Ravel, Edward Brophy, George Grossmith, Pete Gaviliere, Polly Moran and Roscoe Ates.

Sunday Series

Roland Hayes will open a special series on November 23 of six Sunday afternoon concerts to be given in Symphony Hall in the course of the season. Those will also include: Jascha Heifetz, violin; Florence Austral, soprano; John Charles Thomas, baritone; Walter Giesseking, piano; Yelli D'Aranyi, violin, and Paulne Danforth, piano.

La Argentina Recital

A number of new dances and costumes will be introduced by La Argentina when she gives her recital in Symphony Hall on Tuesday evening, October 21. The great Spanish dancer is now returning from Europe having appeared with much success in Paris and various fashionable resorts during the summer past.

RING BATTLE JUST RIGHT FOR 'BEAR'

The fight scenes in "Her Man," at the New B. F. Keith's Saturday, a gripping story of Havana night club life filmed by Pathe, with Tay Garnett directing, are the real thing. There were, perhaps, more prominent ex-pugilists engaged in these scenes than any movie fight put on up to this time, and these boys could not resist the temptation to display, once again, the old wallops that made them famous. The result was plenty of action from start to finish.

Among the fighters is Mexican Joe Rivera, a leading contender for the lightweight championship in the days of Battling Nelson and Ad Wolgast. Joe's bout with Ad Wolgast for the championship, which almost resulted in a double knockout, was one of the most sensational in the history of the prize ring. This bout is still an interesting topic of discussion among the fight fans—the opinion prevailing among many that Joe was robbed of the championship on that occasion.

Sailor Billy Vincent was another in the screen battle. Billy fought his way to the championship of the Navy in the welterweight division. After turning professional he fought all the topnotchers, including former champion Jack Britton.

Frankie Dolan, a clever bantamweight, acted as trial horse for Jimmie McLarnin and Fidel LaBarba at the beginning of their careers. At that time Frankie predicted a brilliant future for these boys, which makes Frankie a good prophet.

Jack Silver, lightweight, and Young Abe Attell, a former ranking bantamweight, and a number of lesser lights help put a real punch into these fight scenes.

STORY OF SEA ON SCREEN

Sea stories always appealed to Milton Sills. His first great success was made in "The Sea Hawk," which definitely established him as one of the foremost players on the screen. And now, in the talking version of Jack London's stirring novel, "The Sea Wolf," Sills has scored what many critics called his finest picture role.

"The Sea Wolf" makes its bow to local audiences at the Fenway today and at the Scollay tomorrow. Jane Keith and Raymond Hackett have featured roles with Sills, while Mitchell Harris, Nat Pendleton, John Rogers, Sam Allen and Harry Tenbrook are cast in important supporting parts.

Cerullo Concert

At the Cerullo concert in Jordan Hall, the afternoon of Sunday, October 26, the blind tenor will be assisted by the Martino Concert Orchestra, Raffaele Martino, conductor.

Spiritlike

MILTON SILLS

MR. SILLS is seen in "The Sea Wolf," his last film, at the Scollay and Fenway.

AGE NO LIMIT IN DANCES

Angna Enters, celebrated dancemime, will give her first public appearance in Boston this season at Jordan Hall Thursday evening, Oct. 30.

Miss Enters came into public notice six years ago when she appeared on the New York stage as one of the company of Michio Ito, the Japanese dancer. Her success is due to the originality and daring of her innovations for a dancer has ever offered such an array of novelties. Her interpretations range over periods from the middle ages to the modern day, and cover differences in custom as far apart as Egypt, Turkey, Vienna, Paris and London.

Signs Raphaelson

Samson Raphaelson, author of "The Jazz Singer," has been placed under contract by Paramount and assigned to the writing staff at the company's Hollywood studios.

NOT REDSKIN YET INDIAN

Paul Gregory, who plays the role of the white Indian, Wanesis, in "Whoopee," at Loew's Orpheum next week, is noted as the central figure in a dispute between theater producers. Oscar Hammerstein and Florenz Ziegfeld were at loggerheads for years as to which one owned the exclusive rights to his services, the matter finally being settled when Ziegfeld bought the contract between Gregory and Hammerstein for $25,000 cash.

That kind of thing happens often in baseball circles, but seldom in the theater. Gregory was already rehearsing in "Rosalie" two years ago for Ziegfeld, when court proceedings brought him back into the fold. "Whoopee" is his first motion picture.

HUNT FOR MISSING PUPILS LEADS TO N. H.

Coolidge Enters Campaign for G. O. P.

Missing Pupils Sought by Police

Chief Enters Murderous Gang Pact

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Following the killing of The Edgewater Kid," a member of rod die Gorio's North Side gang Kinky King, leader of the rival West Side gang, is murdered. Evidence points to Goldie but cracked politics prevent his arrest. To satisfy the public, Chuck Annie the Kid's nemesis and former Kinky's, is arrested. When the Police Chief refuses to release Annie, Goldie creates havoc by destroying public property. Later, he raids the jail and kidnaps Annie. The police give chase. As they close in, Goldie throws a twenty dollar gold piece at the chief, striking him in the eye, and escapes.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 14

BIG JOE GLEASON had taken up the work that Kinky King had left unfinished when Kinky King was left finished. They called Gleason the "Secretary" because he was so handy with the typewriter. And his typewriter was the make that wrote one hundred and twenty-five words the minute and every word was cruel, leaden and penetrating. The patron muse of Secretary Gleason's typewriter was Death.

He had learned to operate the "mill" overseas in a machine-gun unit. The work fascinated him. He had been drafted into it. But when he came back he adopted it as his profession.

Righ-hand man to Kinky himself he had become. And when they found his chief laid out in an undignified and ungraceful lump on the rug of his own rococo apartment, beside him a gilt magazine revolver and a lipstick, Secretary Gleason took over the mantle of President King.

He Was a Butcher

He was a large man with a flat nose and square jaw. Open viciousness shot from his pale gray eyes. No cunning, no treachery here was a butcher. He affected no uppity ways and had little traffic with women. He lived in a small room in the fastnesses of his West Side domain, where his mucklady fought him a hard-working day-laborer—often working nights.

Born a dock rat, he had early gone to sea. He deserted ship in New York and drifted West, leaving his name in Newark and Pittsburgh and other centers where his trade—murder—drew a living wage. He had learned hard ways from hard men, before the mast and behind the rod. His post-graduate degree had been won in stir. On the fields of Flanders he had absorbed the significance of manslaughter. So when he went into the liquor racket, the lowest avocation that deluded humanities had ever caused into the brow of a defenseless people, he had no more conscience than a hyena.

The day the newspapers threw glamour over the rangy gangster atrocity, the raid of the Gorio gang on Central Detail and the abduction of Pulack Annie, Secretary Gleason called a council of his blackleggs in the foul, smelly cellar of one of his gang's outlying joints. Rarely was seen a tougher congregation than this Sanhedrin of Kinky King's survivors. Man for man, they measured up with the best product of prohibition.

Used Lead Pipe

Pete Ferrone and Pinky Shapiro have already met; they had been sent forth to clean up Edgewater Kid. With them eat Yiddles Mescowich, a rotund, ruddy, pink-and-faced little Galician fellow, with twinkling brown eyes in his head and black murder in his heart. And Hafface Charlie, whose sharp beak and bloodless lips designated him a scavenger in his heart. And Pete Ryan, a crimson-cheeked Irishman, who scorned the guts of his time for a leaf pipe wrapped in the paper, a shameful improvement on the honest ahillalah of his forebears.

And Peter Sam Jenetti, a giant ex-yegg with gorilla arms and paws. Scarenose Miko, a Portuguese bandit, who had served his hitch among his own and had fled here from the bloody vengeance of his brethren he had betrayed. Greeks, wops, micks, kikes, Czechs—a score of them—as ungodly a crew as ever spat.

They made their own laws and lived by them. Their laws were primitive and simple. A decent citizen was a one-way sucker; a law-breaker was a two-way worker. There was only one punishment—death. The code was—don't know nothin'.

Secretary Gleason semi-circled his glance over them like a panoramic camera. He filliped back his derby hat, spread his feet and let go his war-cry, which was sweet and straight:

"I want every one o' youse to stay here an' stand by. I got the office today that we're settin' pretty. We got Goldie Gerrio an' his mob in the bag—not one of 'em, but all of 'em. We wipe 'em out an' we get bunk for Kinky an' we cop their territory. That's pickin's. Nobody leave here till I get back . . . c'mon, Haffface—kick the car."

MAY COVER STATE BY RADIO

Announcement Made by Taylor; Senator Nye Winds Up Primary Inquiry

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Definite announcement is made by Chairman Amos L. Taylor of the Republican State committee that former President Calvin Coolidge will take a part in the Massachusetts election campaign.

Taylor, in a speech yesterday to the committee, enlivened the situation by what is practically regarded as an attempt to read out of the party every Republican who does not go the full distance for the G. O. P. nominees.

MAY GO ON THE AIR

Another outstanding feature today was the windup of the conferences into senatorial primary campaign expenses by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, member of the Nye senatorial investigating committee.

Nye saw several men today in addition to Western Starr, the committee under cover agent, but refused to divulge their names or information.

The senator said he regarded the conferences as confidential and would make a report to the full committee.

Ex-President Coolidge, Taylor said, has promised to speak, either from the platform or radio.

In his fighting speech to his committee at the regular meeting at state headquarters, Taylor first stressed the importance of getting every good Republican on the voting list.

"I am not suggesting indiscriminate registration," he said. "Register good Republican voters now and let the Democrats take care of their own registration."

He advised his hearers that if they came across any so-called Republican "leaders" who are going to vote for Democrats to tell them to withdraw from the Republican party.

PARTY IS FORTUNATE

He maintained that the party is fortunate in the platform adopted and expressed confidence that both the "extreme wets and drys can abide by it."

The Democrats have no effective solution of the problem, he contended. The work of the women's organization was outlined by Mrs. Frank Roe Batchelder, vice-chairman of the state committee.

LL-Gov. William S. Youngman, continuing the series of broadcasts inaugurated by the Republican state committee, last night over Station WBZ characterized his Democratic opponent as a man without first-hand knowledge of any of the three branches of government.

McMahon's Bail Set at $500 Pending Trial

Pleas for a reduction of bail pending their trial on charges of mutual assault and battery were granted former City Councillor Thomas W. McMahon and Anthony Nardi, principals in a Marshfield cottage race battle of a few weeks ago in Plymouth District Court today.

Bonds set at $1500 at a previous arraignment were reduced to $500 when the two principals appeared in court today. They will be tried on October 31.

Runaway Awaits Parents

SIGHTSEEING ON $2.60. George Peters, Shelburne Falls runaway, who came to Boston with a bankroll of $2.60 to see the Legion time, is now being held by police of the Charlestown station awaiting the arrival of his parents. George was found by police last night sleeping in an alley. First he claimed New Hampshire as his home, but finally declared that his home was in Shelburne Falls. (Staff photo.)

RUNAWAY FOUND ASLEEP IN ALLEY

George Peters, who claimed New Hampshire and then Shelburne Falls as his home, brooded in Charlestown police station today over the urge that brought him to Boston as a runaway.

The 13-year-old boy was found by Sergt. George Bird sound asleep in a Main st. alley.

"I saved two bucks and 60 cents and came down to the Legion time," the boy said, "but I wish I was on my way to school back home."

Shelburne Falls police were notified.

$3700 in Gems Stolen

Jewelry valued at $3700 was taken from the home of Mrs. Elta Friend of High st., West Medford, when thieves ransacked her apartment yesterday.

YEGGS CRACK 2 DEDHAM SAFES

Picking out the brightly lighted Oakdale sq. in Dedham, yeggmen broke two safes, one in the Gelbecker Men's Shop, the other in a chain grocery store, early today, and obtained more than $1000 in cash.

According to Inspector Edward Flanagan, the robbers must have worked at leisure for several hours the combinations having been torn off both safes.

The breaks were not discovered until employes of the two stores arrived this morning and found papers and books scattered about the floor.

Night lights over the safes in both stores were still burning when workers arrived.

PONZI, COUPON WIZARD, TO BE DEPORTED

Immigration Head Says Move Will Be Started Despite Court Plea

Charles Ponzi, international "coupon wizard," will be returned to Italy by immigration authorities despite his court pleas and rumors that his own country would not take him, Mrs. Anna C. M. Tillinghast, commissioner of immigration, plained today.

Ponzi filed a writ in federal court seeking to restral the Government from deporting him on his release from a seven to nine year term at state prison. It will be heard October 20.

"I can't understand the rumors that Italy will refuse him," Mrs. Tillinghast said.

"If the United States has a reciprocal agreement with Italy for the return of undesirables and have taken others who have been here 20 to 25 years.

"I have a warrant for his deportation, but no request for a passport has been made of the Italian consul, nor will one be made until I get official notification that Ponzi is to be paroled.

"If the passport cannot be procured by the consul here, the Commissioner of Immigration at Washington takes such matters up with the Italian embassy there.

"He has broken the laws of this country and must be deported. There is no alternative, and I think the court will rule that way on his petition."

Ponzi's sentence grew out of his coupon ticket racket of a decade ago, when thousands trusted to him with their money on the promise of "50 per cent in 45 days."

LABOR MEN ON HARBOR TOUR

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor today branded the present national convention of the organization in Boston the most successful in the federation's history.

The convention beings its second week on Monday, and Mathew Woll, chairman of the important resolutions committee, announced today his committee will not be ready to report until Wednesday or Thursday.

Tomorrow the delegates will attend the 10 o'clock mass at the Cathedral on invitation of Cardinal O'Connell, who will occupy his bishop's chair during the mass and afterwards will address the delegation.

Rev. Jones I. Corrigan, S. J., of Boston College will deliver the sermon.

There was no session today and most of the delegates who were not tied up in committee sessions were guests of the Boston Central Labor Union on a sight-seeing tour of the harbor. Dinner was served at Pemberton Inn.

A group went to Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy, to unveil a monument to Domenico D'Alessandro, former president of the International Building Laborers' Union, who died in 1926.

YOUNGMAN AND PEABODY IN ROW

Charges of "liar" and "cowardice" flew today between Lieut-Gov. William S. Youngman and Gen. Francis Peabody, a belated aftermath of the Republican banquet of September 26 when Gen. Peabody took the Republican party to task for its dry stand, the re-election of State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook and the nomination of Fred J. Burrell for state treasurer.

Lieut-Gov. Youngman charged the general called him a "liar" at the banquet instead of making an attempt to refute the arguments he had put forth against previous charges of the general.

His defended Burrell against charges of Peabody that "state funds were used for his own profit and that of his friends.

Gen. Peabody took the state official to task for his bitter reply in a statement that ended with "the people of Massachusetts love justice and fair play, good manners and good temper, and despise cowardice."

SEARCH IS TURNED TO SUMMER HOME

Parents Believe 16-Year-Old Coup'e Are on Honeymoon; Forgiveness Awaits Them

Parents of Doris Rockwell and Frank Ti's, missing 16-year-old Topsfield high school students, declared today they believed the boy and girl are married and honeymooning in some isolated spot in New Hampshire.

At the request of Titus' father, police of New Hampshire were asked to search in the vicinity of Warren, where the Titus family owns a farm. State police of the Topsfield barracks are concentrating their search among camps in this vicinity.

The children will be forgiven if they return, parents of both said.

Two notes, left by young Titus, whose home is in the adjoining town of Boxford, were revealed today by his father. One told the family he was going "downtown." The other, left on the money box of his brother, Calvin, 18, from which Frank borrowed $4, according to his father, read:

"Sorry I had to take it, but pa has some of mine and he's away."

Missing 111 Days

It's SMART to be

SELFISH...NOW

IF anybody ever sits down to write "Famous Mistakes in History" his whole book will all be about the things that Fuddleheads ALMOST did

. . . how Marshall Ney ALMOST got to Waterloo in time to save Napoleon

. . . how SO-and-SO, during the panic of 1893 ALMOST picked off a piece of priceless down-town real estate that was offered him for almost NOTHING. But—OH NO! Not Fuddlehead! He was too SMART to fall for that one. So another fellow, not quite so smart, DID fall for it; and today that other fellow is off the coast of Bermuda somewhere, in a comfortable deck chair, getting reports from his broker by wireless.

Right now America is full of Fuddleheads—

. . . people who, if they want to go UP in an elevator, miss the signals and get carried DOWN

. . . people who wait for the right street car on the wrong corner

. . . well meaning, more or less intelligent people, who try hard enough but who for some reason somehow seem never to CLICK.

NINETY days from now many a Fuddlehead will be kicking himself because he didn't have the good judgment to buy at these new record breaking, SACRIFICE PRICES.

Manufacturers the country over, in every line of production, are liquidating their stocks, in many cases at an actual loss in order to free their money for new programs which they already have under way.

Capitalize this situation—be selfish—turn it to your own personal advantage. The buyer has the breaks. For once in your life, circumstances have conspired in your favor. Your dollar never bought as much as it will right now. Incidentally you yourself know that such prices can't last. Here are just a few random examples:

. . . a seven passenger sedan fully equipped, well known make, greatly improved in detail and workmanship, last January at the New York Show $1200.00—now $995.00.

. . . a fur trimmed coat—the last word in style, finer material, finer quality in every way, eight months ago $95.00—now $69.50. More expensive coat, formerly $350.00—now $250.00.

. . . a blue serge suit by a popular manufacturer $5.00 less than six months ago.

. . . an eight tube radio set (well known brand) was $295.00—now greatly improved and with nine tubes—$179.00 puts it into your home.

. . . flour $3.00 a barrel—the lowest in twenty-five years.

. . . and these prices are typical.

Whatever else the crash did, one thing is sure! For the time being, it has definitely banished the high cost of living.

Be Smart. Be Selfish. BUY NOW!

Fordham and B. C. Ancient Rivals Meet Monday

Some Scrap! Clear Track! Call Cops!

First Big Football Fray of Year in Boston

Haughty Harvard takes on humble Springfield in the football "feature" in this neck of the woods, this afternoon, but the fans look with as much interest on that one-sided shindy as they would on a checker match in the Old Men's Home. This afternoon's pink tea isn't even a cocktail to the football feast that will be spread at Fenway Park next Monday afternoon when Boston College, defeated only three times in three years, throws out its battlefront against its traditional rival, Fordham, whose eleven (Old Cav—Major Frank Cavanaugh—is leading into town with the record of having been unbeaten in two years. When the Eagle meets the Ram fur and feathers will fly. Old men and cripples stand back! Clear the track and give 'em room! Call the cops and ring for the ambulances!

George Underwood

There is a little bit of everything attached to Monday's melee. A clash between two great elevens which on paper appear as evenly matched as any two apples in the barrel. First important duel of the season. Thirteenth annual grapple between the traditional rivals. Cavanaugh, Fordham coach, coached B. C. for seven years and in 1919 and 1920 turned out teams that twice beat Yale. Joe McKenney, B. C. coach, was quarterback on Old Cav's last Boston College team, the eleven which buried Fordham under the debris of 27 to 0 score.

Monday's melange fairly oozes color, sentiment, everything which puts spice and paprika in a sporting dish. Park us in a front seat and let the war begin. When you are ready, Gridley, you may fire.

'Twas nigh on to four years ago that Old Cav left Boston College and went to Fordham. Didn't have much luck the first two years. Takes time to build a football team. The Eagles mopped up the Maroon in 1927 and 1928. Last year the Ram came into its own and Cavanaugh's boys plucked a 7 to 6 victory out of the Eagle's tail.

It was the first game Ford ham had taken from Boston College since 1918, when Frankie Frisch, the Fordham Flash, went on a rampage and ran riot through a whole flock of Eagles. What Frankie didn't uncork in that game scarcely was worth telling about. He ran back a kickoff 80 yards, made 70 yards on the next play and then tossed a beautiful forward pass to Garvey for a touchdown. Not content with that Frankie later in the game flashed fifty yards for another touchdown and booted the goal for another point.

Frankie Frisch was as great a football player as he is a baseball player. You don't see many Frisch's laying around loose.

A LONG WAIT

Fordham had to be content with its victory scored almost single-handed by Frisch for a long, long time. It was not until last season that the Maroon cashed up another victory over the Eagles.

Early in the game it looked like another rout for the New Yorkers. Boston College got off to a flying start when Chesa Antos took a 20-yard forward pass over for a touchdown. Up the sunset reamon of the fray when the shadows, like the finger of fate, were stealing across the gridiron pointing to another Boston College triumph, Jack Fisher, Ram quarterback, unleashed a bit of strategy which turned the tide and toppled the Eagles from the heights of hope to the depths of despair.

All through the game Fisher had been sending his passes towards the flanks. B. C. was playing wide to smother them. Waiting until he had inveigled the Eagles to open up Fisher suddenly switched his tactics and shot a short 20-yard pass directly over the center of the line to Jim Murphy. Big Jim raced 65 yards down the field for the touchdown and Pete Wurzwasek, who hadn't missed a try for goal during the season, kept his record clean by booting the goal which enabled the Maroon to triumph by 7 to 6

The teams which will lineup at Fenway Park next Monday afternoon are little changed from last season. Of the big squad of 76 on last year's Eagles Joe McKenney has 71 with him now. Of the stars only Paddy Cresedon, last year's captain and stellar plunger, is gone. Paddy hopped over to Fordham after graduating from B. C. to assist Cavanaugh as freshman coach.

Fordham has nine men in this year's lineup who faced B. C. last season. Jack Fisher is back after a session on the sidelines because of injuries. Captain Tony Siano, Jim Murphy and Frank McMahon all are nursing wounds, but Old Cav thinks he will have 'em in shape to shoot against B. C. Murphy is leading the country's scorers Big Jim and Janis are the two men B. C. probably will try to cover the closest.

A NEW BRAND

The signs along the trail are that Cavanaugh will flash a different brand of football against the Eagles than he did last season. Last year Fordham was a strictly defensive eleven.

This year Old Cav has stressed the offensive more. The Maroon apparently has developed a punch. Witness the 73-to-0 defeat of Baltimore and the 71-to-0 triumph over Buffalo.

While Big Jim Murphy and Janis are expected to be the principal thorns in B. C.'s side, Coach McKenney knows that Fordham this season has a variegated and sustained attack and will threaten overhead as well as underfoot. Piecuewicz and Flewicz—now the Composing Room will be off us for life. No wonder Fordham has been dubbed "The Team Of All Nations"—are two of the best pass snarers in the game and at any time Fisher is likely to shoot a spiral their way, just when B. C. is covering Murphy.

Other coaches are sympathizing with Old Cav. They know what it mean for an eleven to have to play three crucial games inside of two weeks. That is just what faces Fordham.

Following Monday's game with B. C., Fordham takes on the Crusaders next Saturday and the following week-end plays N. Y. U., in the game which practically has come to be New York's biggest annual football affair. Meeting three traditional rivals in two weeks is a mansized job.

Like B. C., Holy Cross formerly was coached by Cavanaugh Old Cav coached the Crusaders during 1907, 1908, 1909 and 1910. In his three years at Fordham the Maroon has defeated the Purple twice.

Here's hoping Monday's big football classic here will leave enough Fordhamites uncrippled for Major Cavanaugh's outfit to give Capt. John McEwan's Crusaders a bit of an argument the following Saturday. It would be an awful thing for a Major to be licked by a mere Captain.

SUN BEAU OUT FOR SECOND WIN

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP)—Lady Broadcast, Rogers Caldwell's fine filly, was the hope of the west today to break up the east's hold on the Hawthorne gold cup, final rich event of the Chicago horse racing season.

In the two previous runnings of the $25,000 added feature, Display and Sun Beau, both easterners won. Today Sun Beau was back to try for a second straight triumph, but Spinach, a three-year old son of Sir Martin was the eastern favorite. Spinach . . . took a big jump last week when he won the Havre de Grace handicap by four lengths from Sun Beau.

Chicken Earle's Jim Dandy, which gave Gallant Fox his only defeat of the season, also was entered but was not figured to be one, two or three unless the going was muddy.

A field of nine was named overnight, the others being Hal Price Headley's Alcibiades and Pigeon Hole, Plucky Play, Saxon and Mr. Dandy.

Top weight of 126 pounds was assigned to Pigeon Hole. Sun Beau and My Dandy were Lady Broadcast was down for 123 pounds, Plucky Play and Jim Candy got in at 120 pounds and Alcibiades at 117

B. C. High Takes Latin Into Camp

B. C. High remained among the undefeated and unscored upon teams when it beat Boston Latin 7 to 0 at Fenway Park last Saturday. Griffith, the Maroon and Gold fullback scored the only touchdown in the second period after a series of rushes by Morris and Brown from the Latin 32-yard line where Latin's short kick had landed to give the B. C. H. team its start

The best break for B. C. H. came after Latin had held for three downs on its 15-yard line and was punted back on an offside penalty that added momentum to the opponents' march The try point was also earned because Latin was overeager and was offside

Von Porat Scores K.O. But Loses Bout

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP) Otto Von Porat, stalwart Norwegian made a comeback appearance in the College Coliseum tonight . . . when William Stribling knocked him out in a round several months ago, knocked out Angus Snyder of Dodge City, Kans. in the first round, only to lose the bout on a foul for striking the Kansan after the bell had sounded.

The Norwegian paralyzer was a much better fighter last night than when he lost to Stribling, and when the bell rang but Snyder virtually out. And the confusion caused by Von Porat's supposed foul enabled the Kansan to get his head clear and land some punches. Snyder was knocked stiff and had to be carried to his corner. Referee Ed Purdy raised his hand in accordance with the ruling of the judges.

Ormsby Puts B. C. Squad Through Long Drill

Boston College has an off day today. That is it has no game scheduled. The Eagles, however will not remain idle over the week end. With the hardest game of the season with Fordham University only two days away, the B. C. coaches are driving the squad hard in an attempt to put it on edge for the battle.

Coaches McKenney and Mc Manus are in New York today but the squad put in a stiff workout yesterday afternoon under the direction of Backfield Coach Dr. Dawson.

All the regulars will be used with the exception of Cooper, best forward passer, star end. Having received a bad ankle sprain in the game with Holy Cross last week, Cooper will be unable to take any part in the battle.

With Cooper out of the game, the Eagles will have a much harder chance of beating the Cavanaugh eleven. The Eagle group is counted on to push through the Eagles' for that matter and the forward pass will probably be the most powerful weapon on the field.

Cobert is one of the best forward passers in the East and, with Captain Jimmy Dixon back in the game the aerial game which McKenney has planned to use against Fordham would work like a charm.

The Rams showed that they were not so strong against an efficient passing game when they scored their opponents to score all their points by the air route in a 19-0 defeat.

EACH BOXER HAS BEATEN OTHER

By JACK CONWAY

Charles Hoyer, manager of Tom Heeney, has opened fire on Jack Maloney.

"I was at the ringside when Shamus licked Carnera," writes Hoyer. "Maloney gave a fine account of himself. This was due partly to the fact that Maloney had too much experience for the Italian Giant.

Jack Maloney

"I am convinced that Tom Heeney could have beaten the Maloney who upset Carnera. Heeney has been working well during the past six months and I am convinced he will have a big edge over Maloney in their next fight.

"Heeney and Maloney have already met twice. In the first tussle, Tom chilled Maloney in one round while he lost the decision after ten rounds of battling in the second conflict.

"If a rubber contest is arranged, you can bet the family jewels on Heeney. He'll win sure."

Meanwhile Dan Carroll, manager of Maloney, is busy considering a flock of offers.

Hubert J. Fuguay would like to stage another Maloney-Carnera match at Atlantic City, but Dan has tabled the offer for the time being.

The New York American Christmas Basket Fund sought a Sharkey-Maloney tussle, but Farrell felt that such an affair would draw more money in Boston next summer

Maloney, however, intends to keep active in the ring. His next start will probably be at the Boston Garden. Boston and New England fans have stood by Jim in all his ups and downs and should receive enough support to slip him the glad hand when he breezes into action again.

Schmeling to Go Into Movies in California

Max Schmeling, who received a gift of the world's heavyweight championship, will return to this country next month. He will journey to Hollywood, where he will go into the movies

After the Hollywood venture, Max will make a trip to Florida and then go on an exhibition tour. Max is under contract to defend his title for the New York Garden here in June of next year. Joe Jacobs, Max's manager, says the Garden contract was made under duress. He says that Max was forced to sign by the New York Athletic Commission act. He was granted a license to meet Jack Sharkey last June.

Jacobs has several times threatened to go into court to break the contract but he will probably end up fighting Sharkey.

Sharkey Showed Stribling in His True Colors

Ever since Young Stribling returned from England where he knocked out Phil Scott, he has been telling the world how anxious he was to meet all comers. His impression upon his listeners that he was anxious to tackle Jack Sharkey again last night was a rage last

Damon Runyon, acting for the Christmas Fund of the New York American, offered Stribling $30,000 to meet Sharkey in New York on December 8. This caused the Georgia Peach to run for cover. He didn't want any part of the American heavyweight champion.

Meanwhile Sharkey agreed to limit the match on a percentage

Hub Boys to Start for Holy Cross Today

Worcester, Oct. 11—Holy Cross opposes Catholic University here today with a lineup in the backfield that will present Providence College's famous "Three Musketeers" in action. Two guards will be missing from the Purple line that defeated Providence, 13 to 0, last week. Dan Healey, veteran guard, is ineligible because of a knee injury, and Joe Dunn, sophomore, is out with a broken leg.

To fill the gaps Coach Jack Barry has shifted Al Debus and Tom Conroy to the guard positions. Debus, a veteran, will start at right guard, while Conroy, a sophomore, will be at left guard. Debus and Conroy have been shifted from backfield positions.

Catholic University is not looked upon as dangerous because of its previous record. But the first string men will need to extend themselves to the utmost to be ready for the Fordham contest next week.

Toothaker went in for Morton and fumbled on the next play. Score, no recovering for B U. Passing and rushing attempts failed and Hoolstein punted outside on Dartmouth's 20-yard line before being replaced by Mullins

After a shot at the line and an incomplete pass, the Green quarter kicked and the ball rolled over the goal line.

Ferry was injured on the next play and was replaced by Kimball. Wolff's kick was partly blocked by the B. U. line-up. Mullins punted poorly to Dartmouth's 45-yard line

A 15-yard penalty against the Green put them back with 25 yards to go for a first down. Toothaker punted over the goal after a 10-yard run.

Mullins' pass failed and he punted again. Wolff then ripped off 20 yards through tackle. Lee, who had been sent in for Toothaker, added another 10 yards.

Then Porter took the ball on a reverse, carrying over for third touchdown. Lee kicked the point.

Score—Dartmouth 21; B. U. 6.

Mullins took the kickoff on his own six-yard line and ran it back 35. Leguern and Mullins were stopped at the line and Leguern punted to Dartmouth's 45-yard line. Lee and Porter took the ball through tackle twice for a first down. Then Buster made eight yards.

Wilkens carried down to B. U.'s 15-yard line. Branch was injured and replaced by Connell. The ball ended with the ball on B U.'s 3-yard line.

Score—Dartmouth 21, B. U. 0.

WINTER MEET AT LONGWOOD

Plans have been formulated for a harness-race meeting at Seminole Park, Longwood, Fla., next winter, the meeting to start the latter part of January and continue for seven weeks. Three days racing will be staged each week, and in all probability there will be at least three races each day.

The plant at Seminole Park has been the most popular winter training ground for the last three seasons and no doubt the attraction of the race meeting at which liberal purses will be offered, will cause many other trainers to consider a training season in the South.

Each season the training colony at Longwood has grown larger, and the coming one should be the most colorful and interesting of all. The facilities at Seminole Park are the best, and the fact that the world's champion three-year-old Hanover's Bertha J. 1:59¼, was raised there during the last winter season, argues well in favor of the southern training camp.

The stables of Ben F. White, Hanover Shoe Farms, and the Arden Homestead Stable, owned by E. Roland Bastman, made their headquarters there last season and were likely they will be on hand again in addition to many newcomers.

Country Day Wins Over Mechanics

Country Day's eleven beat Mechanic Arts, 21 to 6, in an informal game at Newton. Smith and Downes featured for Country Day Yakers of Mechanics intercepted a forward pass and ran 50 yards for the only score for his club. Waldinger drop kicked two placements on the three points for Country Day and Downes ran 45 yards to within a yard of the Mechanics' goal to put Smith in position to score one of the touchdowns

Richards to Quit After Tonight's Match at Arena

Vincent Richards, 27-year-old marvel of the tennis courts, who made his first bid for fame in Boston and crashed through to win the national doubles with Bill Tilden in 1918, tonight will ang his swan song in the Hub.

Figuring in exhibitions with Karel Koseluh, the famous Czech, Roman Najuch, who recently arrived from Germany on his maiden trip to America, and Charles M. Wood, Jr., young New Yorker, at the Arena, Richards declares that he is making his final bow before a Boston audience as a competitor.

"I've had too much, much too strenuous for what a player gets out of it," declared Richards today, as he supervised the laying of the court on which the players will perform tonight. "I've had definite warnings that my legs won't last long," he added, "and I'm going into business immediately."

Richards, who recently beat Koseluh in a four-set final for the American professional championship, has matched tentatively arranged for the week-end in New York, but it now appears that the contests may be cancelled. Koseluh, who is now 35 years old, refuses to go on extended stands, insisting that he needs rest between matches.

Richards Loud in Praise of Rival

"I've never seen any player," said Richards, "who is so intense in a tennis match as is Koseluh. He puts his heart and soul into any kind of a contest, whether or not a championship is at stake, and I expect to see the best of all his power at the Arena. It takes a lot of energy to play Koseluh an hour, and while I've enjoyed my matches with him I've learned that it takes wonderful physical condition to handle his terrific baseline drives."

Najuch believes that Roman Najuch, the 37-year-old German, who winters on the Riviera at Cannes, will amaze the Boston tennis public with his strokes tonight.

"Najuch weighs 230 pounds," said Richards, "but he is quick on his feet and he passed the ball with terrific power. He has a flat drive that is swift and accurate, and he likes the kind of surface on which we are going to play tonight."

Tonight's program is attractive because of the presence of the greatest volleyers in the history of tennis—Richards, the peer of any baseline specialist who ever lived; Koseluh, a heavyweight of the court, who is a veritable wizard in attracting returns to his rotund form—Najuch, and an examinateur in Wood who held the national indoor boys' title in 1919 when Richards was king of the juniors.

Harvard Harriers Are Easy Winners

Harvard's varsity cross-country team scored an easy victory over New Hampshire on the new Charles river course in Cambridge, 19 to 44 in a three-cornered freshman meet, New Hampshire emerging the victor with 25 points, Harvard was second with 42 points, and Holy Cross brought up a poor third with 47.

Penrose Hallowell of Readville, star miler of the Harvard track team, raced away with first place in the varsity meet. Hallowell shot into the lead at the start, and was never headed leading over the entire five-and-a-quarter-mile course. On the final stretch Glick of New Hampshire came up to threaten the Crimson flier, but Hallowell led the Widest by her to the tape by about 20 yards. Thus much for the course were laid out for the first time. Hallowell's time of 30 minutes and 15 seconds stands as a record.

Legion Head Starts School Soccer Off

Ralph T. O'Neil, newly elected commander of the American Legion, started the ball rolling in the opening game of the Boston school boy soccer season in the tilt between elevens representing the Abraham Lincoln and Washington schools at the Boston Common.

The schoolboy campaign got away to a great start with 18 teams engaged in the opening day fixtures.

ERNIE SCHAAF CENTER OF COURT SUIT

Ernie Schaaf is the center of a suit filed in the equity session of the Superior Court to determine an management. It was revealed today.

Action was brought against Phil Schmeling, manager of the Boston heavyweight, by Herbert Kaufman of this city.

Kaufman claims Schlossberg entered into partnership with him for the management of Schaaf and other boxers. He now prays an accounting.

Attorney Simon Rukell, counsel for Schlossberg, stated today that his client would file an answer in this case next week.

Schaaf is a former Navy champion and has been successful in the ring during the past two years. He defeated Tommy Loughran twice this summer in bouts staged in Philadelphia.

N. Y. Suspends Jim Maloney

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Jimmy Maloney's sensational victory over Primo Carnera in Boston on Tuesday night has led to his suspension in New York.

The New York State Athletic Commission pinned an indefinite suspension on Maloney in a conference with the commission rule forbidding a boxer in good favor here to engage one who is ineligible. Carnera has been in disfavor here since the California commission suspended him in connection with a match-factory bout in that State.

Two brilliant backfield stars will hold the center of the schoolroom grid stage Monday when Brockton high with Bertram Piteski marches into Bertram Field, Salem, to battle Norman Rand and the other Salem high warriors

Two important suburban league games are on the holiday bill. Newton going to war with a good Everett high team, and Rindge Tech tangling with Cambridge Latin at Russell field, North Cambridge.

Newton has a big heavy team but has not had much success thus far, losing to Arlington and Everett. The Garden City boys are improving and should give Everett competition.

After its excellent conquest of Rindge last week Everett is confident of another win and a firmer grip on the top rung of the league ladder.

Capt. Tony Sarausky of Rindge can make the going exceedingly rough for the Everett gents if any kind of support from the teammates. Against Everett Sarausky was a standout but had poor protection.

Cambridge Latin has been a surprise in its games and may tip over Rindge. B. C. high was fortunate to beat the light Cantabs and Newton did well to hold Leander MacDonald's team to a score. Jess the Oliver Tadgell duo in the backfield, and center, Reardon and tackle Lekakos in the line are doing fine work for Cambridge Latin

Medford to Take on Somerville

Medford, just starting to show its real strength, will play Somerville at Dilboy Field. Hubba Collins' Medford eleven will have the services of Jim Silva in the backfield, for the first time in several weeks.

Framingham at Norwood, Manchester, N. H., at Lowell, Milton high at Quincy and Arlington at Winchester are some of the other leading school football attractions for Monday.

PICK O'KELLEY TO BEAT GAGNON

Harry Kelley says Con O'Kelley will win when he tackles Jack Gagnon in a 10-round bout at the Arena a week from Tuesday night. Kelley is a keen judge of boxers. He was one of the few who picked Maloney to win over Carnera. More important, he backed his judgment with a healthy bet at long odds.

Kelley has selected O'Kelley to vanquish over Jack Dudley, Tiger Tom Dixon and King Solomon. He says the Gagnon bout is another step up the ladder leading to a return meeting with Maloney.

Meanwhile Gagnon is training at Sharon Gardens and asserts he will outgrunt O'Kelley as he did Al Friedman.

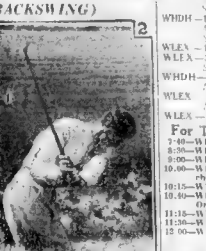
Horton Smith's Golf Lessons

Famous Young Missouri Professional Illustrates and Describes the Mechanics and Technique of Play

GETTING OUT OF A SAND TRAP (THE BACKSWING)



This illustrated lesson is for that species of golfer who is forever complaining that he is "no good" in a bunker. And invariably it is because of this dread of bunkers and sand traps that he finds himself so frequently in them. And yet it is seldom that you see this type of golfer practicing bunker shots and if he does, he generally goes about it in the wrong way.

I find that when studying a certain golf shot it pays to dissect it, so to speak. In other words, take it apart in sections. With that in view I will treat with the elements of the backswing today and in the next article will show the finish of the swing.

In the first picture you will notice the shot is being made from a well raked sand trap. Abroad they don't rake the bunkers at all and I am not sure but that the overseas linkskeepers are right because the natural rough encourages a certain amount of versatility. Yet the raked bunkers abroad are not so hard to get out of as some of the furrowed bunkers at Oakmont and other championship courses.

In the illustrations I am always using the much discussed sand wedge. The club, inspired by a novel mashie niblick which I picked up in Texas last winter, has passed quietly even in Great Britain which was quick to put a ban on the scheisterlady putter and ribbed faced clubs and only recently lifted the taboo on steel shafts.

The sand wedge is just what its name implies. The under part of the blade has a heavy, smooth prong giving the cutting edge the appearance of a wedge. With the cupped face and the wedge it is almost impossible to dig deep into the sand, a fault which results in a smothered shot. With the sand wedge, all one must do is keep the arm and hand and a smooth, rhythmic swing.

However, let's get back to the lesson. You will observe in the illustrations that I have the square stance. The square posture is the modern stance for everything in golf. It is just as easy, and better, to play all shots that way.

Because the shot is to be made from what is known as a "good bunker lie" (the bank is not steep and the ground is firm) I have not buried my feet in the sand as I would have done in the event of a bad lie and a steep bank to negotiate. Here is a point that should be stressed, for many golfers make the mistake of stepping gingerly into a bunker and, with footing none too secure, blast away for an explosive shot. Invariably the feet will slip and the shot be destroyed. Be sure, when making a full, powerful shot in a sand trap or bunker that you have a good, solid footing.

Picture 3 discloses very little hip turn because it is a short swing. You will also observe that the left shoulder has not dipped. This short back swing applies, of course, only to the type of shot being played. A half tie or steep bank would necessarily call for a longer, stronger swing.

Picture 3 shows the club getting under way in its descent and it presents a good illustration of how the whole right side of the body is in control and is supplying the punch.

Sandlot Skirmishing

The Pere Marquettes once again head the list of semipro and amateur football wars on the home for tomorrow afternoon. The Peres travel to alien grounds to tackle the Salem Town Team at Donovan Field, Salem.

It will be the first game away from home and the first stiff game for the South Boston Caseys this season. Coaches Whalen and Sanford went to work and strengthened their eleven for this game by obtaining the services of Tony Plansky, giant fullback.

Salem is captained by Glenn O'Brien, former B. U. leader, and has such stars as Don Sheehan and Bill Hall, formerly of B. U. and Holy Cross College, in their line-up

A "natural" is on tap at Dilboy Field, Somerville, with the Roche club of Everett journeying there to meet the Dilboy post aggregation Last Sunday the Roche crew held Arlington to a scoreless tie while the Dilboys were conquering the strong University A. A., 2–0.

The University A. A. hopes to make up for its defeat at Dilboy by pounding the Dorchester Millstreamers. These teams will meet at Russell Field, Cambridge.

St. Ambrose, the strong Dorchester Town Field representative, will be after its second victory of the season against St. Patrick's at the home field. St. Ambrose looked good while defeating St. Alphonsus last week but Coach Malley has some a lot of changes in preparation for the clash with the Cambridge invaders.

The Gate of Heavens will travel to Framingham to meet the Framingham Lion Tamers. The Gates have been enjoying much success this season, being led by bobby Corran, Jimmy Splaine and Captain Walter Garrity, all former members of the championship South Boston High School outfit.

The Fittons'vil ihave a tough nut to crack in the Quincy Trojans at Fort Banks, Quincy has a win over the Dilboys and is this season one of the semi-pro leaders. Bud Dewey of B. C. and "Coffee" Wells of Medford, have been added to the Fitten lineup.

The Seven Eleven Club of Roxbury is seeking a game for tomorrow away from home. The team's ages ranges from 150 to 160 pounds. Pete Bagley is the manager. He lives at Eustis st., Roxbury, and his phone number is Liberty 0179.

The St. Alphonsus Association of Roxbury will meet the Roslindale A. A. in their first home game in three years at the Fens Stadium. Morley and McCarthy are coaching the Saints and have picked the following lineup: Reidy and Mines, ends; Tangney and Goode, tackles; Walsh and Manning, guards; Niland, center; Currie, quarter; Sullivan and Driscoll, halves, and Lyons, fullback.

DANIELS TO BOX RISKO HERE

Dick Daniels will come to Boston following his 10-round bout with Tommy Loughran in Minneapolis on October 15. Daniels is billed to clash with Johnny Risko at the Boston Garden on October 23.

In his Hub debut, Daniels won from Johnny Risko. The Minneapolis warrior made a good impression with the fans by his showing against Gallagher Daniels is six feet tall and weighs 184 pounds. His most important victories were scored over Babe Hunt, Matt Adgie, K. O. Christner and Gallagher.

Hyde Park Pins Defeat on Belmont

Hyde Park high eleven swamped Belmont high on South playground by the score of 26 to 0.

Avery, Hyde Park's right end, scored the initial tally of the game in the very first period on a beautifully executed pass from Rankin which sailed 30 yards.

Ridluff, who tallied twice for the victors, did so in the second and fourth quarters on some fine line plugging.

Rankin came in for a bit of scoring glory himself in the third period of the game when he intercepted a wildly thrown Belmont pass on the latter's 30 yard line and scampered the rest of the way goalward.

Cormier Stops Johnny Villa

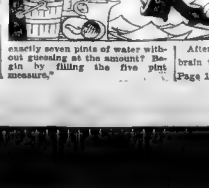
Worcester, Oct. 10—Vernon Cormier of Worcester knocked out Johnny Villa, fellow townsman, in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout here. Villa's seconds claimed a foul which was not allowed by the referee

Here's Test to Try Your Intelligence

Solve It and You Are of "Superior Mentality"

Here is an intelligence test, drawn up by British psychologists for adults If you can solve it you are a person of "superior intelligence."

"A mother sent her boy to the river to fetch seven pints of water, giving him a three pint and a five pint measure to carry it in. How could the boy measure exactly seven pints of water without guessing at the amount? Begin by filling the five pint measure,"



After you have wracked your brain trying to solve this, turn to Page 19 for the answer.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

Almost daily our [illegible] ...knowledge of some new [illegible] ...which radio is being util[illegible] ...would seem [illegible] ...limit to the various uses [illegible] ...this unseen power may be [illegible] ...It is almost unknown [illegible] ...may be utilized to operate a [illegible] ...refrigerator, to heat your [illegible] ...and even to feed the baby

In editorial comment the Lowell Courier-Citizen says: "Not only is loud-spoken radio already used to scare [illegible] but one Rudolph Kelley asserts that he can annihilate the bugs on a person's fruit trees by shouting at them from a national broadcasting station.

"You just say 'naughty naughty' to the cooker-worm in the local loud speaker will convey the message to them and they will shrivel up and die. You tell the over-lazy young worms where they get off, and they will stay away. Instead of putting an embargo on the corn borer, you read it the riot act via the radio, and quit Marse Borer.

"You preach a sermon by directional radio at the ball scoundrel and he will forthwith recover his evil ways. By telling him what you think of him, you may cause the bruised-ball mouth to turn tail. You may exterminate the mosquito in a whisper by pressing the right buzzer. Put any buzz in your bed will yield to this newest vocal fumigation, for believe it or not, the most terrific application of radio is wonderful"

It is just barely possible the editor of the Citizen is spoofing a bit, but it's a swell idea just the same.

Out in Cleveland, O., a radio-equipped fire truck will be in service before long. Safety officials have found the radio so valuable to the city's police department that they have decided to extend its use to the fire department also That city was one of the pioneers in the use of radio-equipped police cruisers

A very interesting program will be broadcast from WEEI to WBZA tomorrow night at 6:15 when the "Chevrolet Chronicles" will present Maj. Frank L. Anders, holder of the Congressional medal of honor, who saw service in the Filipino insurrection and the great World War

According to the press representative down to station WTIC, Hartford, Conn., "Mike" Hanapi is to blame for making America "Ukulele-conscious." How anybody from the Ilima Islands (wherever those are) should sign his John Hancock with a Mike we don't know, but it seems that this South Sea islander with the Celtic name came to this country at the age of 15, played his way from coast to coast, made records and all that sort of thing, and is now doing his stuff over the National network. Better cock an ear to WTIC Monday evening at 7 and hear this "uke" manipulator

They were originally Greek and Roman instruments. On an ancient Greek sculpture, now in Rome, a bagpiper is represented dressed like a modern Highlander. Nero is said to have played the pipes in the year 51.

She's Much Afraid He Will Fall for the Other Girl

Do Not Let Him Know You Care

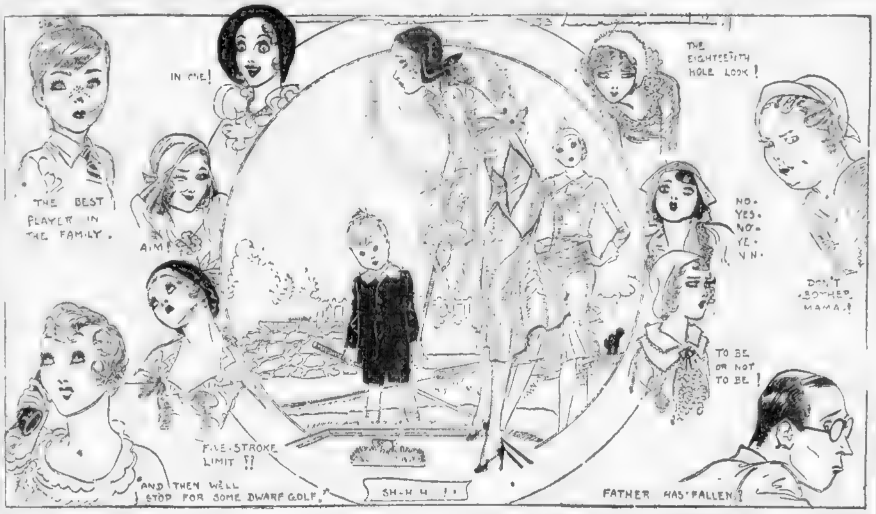
THE TOM-THUMB-FACE

Drawn by Nell Brinkley



HAVE YOU got one?

A snooty world has stopped to look—snottily—linger— and fallen. Hop-o'-My-Thumb "gowf" manikin golf, midget golf, scintillates on thousands—ho, hundreds of thousands—of erstwhile dark, ne'er-do-well corners. They say Real Estate is clapping hands over him. Art didn't think so much of him: and the Lofty-Brow and the browser among the refinements of life smiled and passed on. Little Mister Plain Man took to it like a duck to a lilied pond; but George and Gerry Golfer, Letty and Luther Litterateur, Art and Arline Artist, and [illegible] and Skiffington Society just whizzed by.

But Hop-o'-My-Thumb golf is an insinuating wag, and if you don't want to get thick with him, just don't go the first time. At all, at all. Why an artist has been seen on one; a writer; and Sally and Skiffington are building their own.

Beware of your little boy if you want to stay away from the baby game. For little boys are to blame for a lot of fallen parents. They [illegible] them in the first time: and now, though the [illegible] is usually the best player in the family, nobody plays harder nor more often shamefacedly suggests, "Have we got time for a bit of midget golf, do you think?" than his grownup family.

The writer and the writer's little boy's father looked with a blithe and faint scorn on the plodding figures under the twinkling trees on many a corner. And then one day their little blonde boy who somehow [illegible] them into doing many things they do not want and never meant to do, asked to "Try it once, Daddy," in a honeyed voice. And now Infant Golf is part of the weekly holiday program and must be squeezed in, no matter what other grander things beside.

Will next summer bring the Toy-Town golfing in as a frock that every girl must have? Or will the weathervane world of nineteen-thirty-one be parachute-leaping, father, mother and baby, sister, brother and sweethearts, for an hour's play between dinner and Moompitchers, with Hop-o'-My-Thumb forgotten?

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Vital Things in Life Are Its 'Ties'

By HELEN ROWLAND

AT TWENTY we think that the [illegible] and [illegible] thing in the world is freedom.

At [illegible] we begin to see [illegible] that the most important and vital things in life are TIES.

Most men and many women spend their youth in trying to [illegible] ties. Home ties, family ties—and above all, [illegible]

[illegible] mean self-sacrifice and re[illegible] interfere with your amusements, and sometimes deflate your pocketbook. Ties may [illegible] ambition or a hobbie, holding you back.

Yet the bleakest, emptiest and most pathetic life on earth is that of [illegible] man or woman who [illegible] in the world! The [illegible] man or woman whom nobody [illegible] or woman who [illegible] to [illegible] happy [illegible]

[illegible] widows and widowers [illegible] Why do [illegible]

Men [illegible] themselves [illegible] up with some [illegible] Women [illegible] feeling that they [illegible] yet before the [illegible] again on the dotted line.

[illegible] that's what! Yet few [illegible] to marry in order to get [illegible] or a housekeeper in these days of bachelor flats, apartment hotels, clubs and [illegible] cook. And few women [illegible] marry in order to acquire a provider in these days of [illegible] beauty parlors and tearooms.

Kisses are as free as the air at a filling station and love comes in a hundred assorted varieties of imitations. NOBODY need be lonely or bored any more.

Then what in the world do people go right on marrying for? For TIES, dear heart! For somebody [illegible] with [illegible] for somebody who NEEDS them!

[illegible] man or woman is not orientated. He (or she) has no vital or definite reason for "carrying on." No base from which to work out life. No particular goal—and no particular incentive. "He travels fastest who travels alone——" —but what has he GOT when he gets there?

One reason why women—even self-supporting successful women [illegible] WISER than [illegible] them that a life without TIES is only half a life. And half a life is not better than none!

Cathie Branded 'Gold Digger' By Mr. Farnsworth's Secretary

CHAPTER 45

THE TEN minute recess was over. Judge East was back on the bench. Cathie had to crane her neck to look up at him from her place next to Mr. Allan and Mr. Gunther and Ma, at the defendant's table.

Inspector Horgan was called, and after him Inspector Bidwell. They told about being sent for by telephone, and coming out to the house and finding Mr. Farnsworth dead.

They told a lot of other things too. How long they had been in the police department, and things like that. Well, that was all right, Cathie didn't mind, though it took time. She relaxed a little, realized that her head was aching as usual, and wondered how many more days it would last. She wished Gordon could have sat there at the table with her. It would have helped to have him . . . You need people you love at times like this . . .

* * *

Coroner on Stand

Especially when the coroner took the stand. As he talked the courtroom seemed to slip away. Cathie was back in the big house . . . running up the third floor stairs, wringing her hands, listening to Marguerite . . . hearing the house come alive again . . . growl of men's voices, slam-bang of the front door opening and shutting . . . Back in her own room again, the silver and turquoise room Mr. Farnsworth had fixed for her . . . cowering there, listening to the sound of the slow footsteps of the men who came to carry him away . . . hearing the peculiar, measured tread of men carrying a heavy body . . . carefully . . . around the corners . . . Thinking, 'I'll always hear it . . . I'll never be able to forget it . . . it will be branded into me forever . . . even if they let me go free . . .

Secretary Called

After him came other witnesses. People who had known Mr. Farnsworth. Mr. Macmillan and Mr. Allan really did most of the talking. About all they gave the witnesses a chance to say was 'Yes,' and "No." Mr. Macmillan was trying to make them say that there was something queer about Mr. Farnsworth's sudden marriage to her. Mr. Allan was trying to establish proof that the marriage had been a happy one.

And then they called Marsha Darrow. Cathie saw Mr. Allan's fat neck stiffen, his massive shoulders bulge. Mr. Macmillan [illegible]

Marsha Darrow seemed to enjoy being a witness. She wore a smart little coat suit of tan cloth, and a red hat that scooped off her forehead and hung in a sort of ruffle down over her shoulders. Cathie had the odd sensation of being stabbed by [illegible] her.

Did Miss Darrow know the accused? Yes, she did, very well. Was she in her confidence? She couldn't say that. Didn't they work together [illegible] and the defendant [illegible] months in the late Alfred Farnsworth's office? Yes, but they [illegible] very much in common. [illegible] surprised [illegible] of [illegible]

"I saw it coming," she said. "I understood the situation. She was very poor, and she had previously borrowed several hundred dollars from him. Was very heavily in his debt, do you see? So it was quite natural for her to accept his offer."

[illegible] her teeth, and stared straight ahead.

"Do you know exactly why he loaned her the money?"

"No."

"To the best of your judgment, was it a friendly loan? A case of this girl needing money, and this wealthy [illegible] acceding to her requests."

"Yes. She told us in the office that her mother was very sick, so I suppose that was why she needed money. I know that the money was loaned to her because I did Mr. Farnsworth's banking and saw the check stubs. I know that her mother was ill because Miss Paige told me so. I do not know, of course, that this was the reason for her borrowing from Mr. Farnsworth, but I think so." Miss Darrow settled back complacently. She knew she was being a good witness.

A little electric shiver went through the courtroom. A shiver of anticipation.

"You are also acquainted with the Farnsworths' friend, Mr. Gordon Moore?" the district attorney was asking.

A nervous girl [illegible]

Miss Darrow shot a sudden angry look at Cathie. "Yes, I am."

"And how long was Mrs. Farnsworth acquainted with him, to your knowledge?—withdraw that—did she meet this Mr. Moore before or after her meeting with Alfred Farnsworth?"

"Before."

"Was this Mr. Moore interested in the defendant?"

"He was."

"He told you so?"

"Yes."

"And she appeared to be interested in him?"

"I'll say!"

"Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, if the court please!" Mr. Allan was shouting right over Miss Darrow's answer.

"Objection overruled."

"And assign the asking of it as misconduct upon the ground it does not in any way tend to prove the issue——"

"And irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial!" Mr. Gunther shouted.

Many Objections

"How many of you gentlemen are making objections? One of you can make them, and not both of you," the judge said, looking first at Mr. Allan and then at Mr. Gunther.

The district attorney went right on. "And so she married the rich man, and was in love with the poor man, is that it, Miss Darrow?"

"I object! Your honor——"

"Objection sustained," the judge said. He wiped his glasses on the pink cloth he kept in his pocket.

The black-browed district attorney smiled a little.

"That will be all, thank you, Miss Darrw," he said.

The courtroom buzzed . . . "So THAT'S it!" . . . "Well!" "Of all things"

"Order!" the bailiff bellowed, rapping hard on the desk.

Cathie's cheeks were blazing. She had heard a little stifled moan from her mother.

She knew it hadn't done any good for Mr. Allan to object. The district attorney's question had accomplished its purpose. It turned public sympathy away [illegible]

1. If I go to a party with a young man who does not dance would it be proper for me to accept a dance invitation from any other boy at the party?

2. Should I ask him personally or send him a note of invitation to the party?

3. My sister will also attend the affair and as it is a birthday party would it be proper if we both give her one gift or should we each give separate gifts?

B. A.

1. Yes. And I hope the non-dancing gentleman will soon learn to dance—he's missing too much not to.

2. Send him a note of invitation.

3. Either is correct just as you wish.

A Gracious Reply

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

What should one say when she is thanked for [illegible] a sick friend or calling her on the telephone?

R. G.

You might say, "Thank you for letting me come to see you," or "Thank you for letting me talk with you over the telephone," or "It is such a joy to see you and to see that you are getting so well," or "I am grateful to you for letting me come [illegible]" [illegible] I am happy [illegible] Indeed [illegible] happy by [illegible]

Don't say what people [illegible] thank you. "Instead, [illegible] was glad to come." Thank the other person for the spirit of pleasure that you have had in seeing a friend.

The Boy Pays as a Rule

DEAR MRS. [illegible]

[illegible] should she wait to be asked? If the girl asks a boy to a social time, such as a dance, should he pay all the expenses, or should they go "Dutch treat," or should she let the boy pay all expenses?

If your boy or girl seems to be one of the backward ones, have you ever questioned [illegible] as to the foods [illegible]? Your children have a [illegible] so full and brimming over with vitality that they must run and shout and play hard to work it out. As a general rule, the children who play hard work hard at their lessons, too. Active brains and active bodies depend on active digestions.

Not only must foods be nourishing and strengthening, but they must not be too heavy, and they must be easily assimilated. Macaroni and spaghetti form ideal elements for easy digestion and proper nourishment. The [illegible] content of a popular brand of macaroni and spaghetti I can [illegible] gives them a special appeal to the appetite and makes them especially easy to digest.

Cook the tomatoes, onion, bay leaf and cloves together [illegible] 5 minutes. Rub through a sieve. Melt butter, add the flour and [illegible] until smooth, then add the tomato, salt, pepper and sugar with a few grains of soda if the tomatoes are very acid. Bring to boiling point. Just before serving add grated cheese and blend thoroughly.

SPAGHETTI WITH CRAB MEAT

Encouraging Statements of Facts From Heads of Corporations

New York, Oct. 11—As there is no lack of bad news, suppose this column today dwells upon good news?

My barber tells me that after months of dullness, business lately has improved quite noticeably.

At the restaurant where I usually lunch, the owner reports a distinct increase in customers, a fact I had already noted.

Factory employment in New York State increased some 2 per cent between mid-August and mid-September, the first gain since October of last year.

Procter & Gamble, soap manufacturers, have done more business in the last three months than they did a year ago—and made more money.

President Frank L. Dame, of the North American Company, reports an increase of better than 3 per cent in electric output in the last 12 months over the previous 12 months.

Vice-President Frederick D. Corley, of Marshall, Field & Co., states: "There is a vastly different atmosphere in wholesale merchandising circles than there was 30 days ago."

Merchants who have been "starving" their stocks, he adds, are beginning to scurry around for supplies.

President R. H. Whitehead, of the New Haven Clock Co., in announcing an alignment with Westinghouse to supply electric clocks, observes:

"We have augmented our sales and advertising organization with new blood."

President Allen D. Gutchess, of the De Vilbiss Co., of Toledo, manufacturers of spray-painting and spray-finishing equipment for industrial plants:

"Our business has been satisfactory and apparently this is because forward-looking American industrial institutions are purchasing new, and modernizing their present labor and money saving mechanical equipment with the idea in mind of lowering costs and speeding production."

BOSTON BANKS PAYING AT OLD RATE

By FRANK H. MELOON

In the face of reports that some of the Boston savings banks would reduce their rates of payments on deposits, the five major institutions which have declared dividends within the past week have all retained the old rates. When 11 savings institutions in New York lowered their rates early this month, the stories were circulated that Boston institutions would follow their lead.

"The great test of the curtailment of the present year is now at hand," said Lincoln Baylies in his farewell address as president. "If the mills will hold to their curtailment program and if the mills throughout the North and South continue to maintain production on a reasonable and sensible parity with demand, better business will be the reward. If, however, the present curtailment is reduced at the first sign of better business we will find ourselves as an industry entering the new season under an even greater disadvantage than was the case a year ago and there are not many of us who care to contemplate a repetition of 1930 in 1931."

Selling of signal lights to town and city enabled more than one big corporation to increase its profits measurably in 1928 and 1929. Although the traffic-directing "robot" installed in a suburban city "fell down," the traffic lights, for some reasons, were accepted as a moderate success and considered very good in a few places.

New England plants have done most of the manufacturing of signal lights, which appear to have been invented in Massachusetts, although that is not certain. As for the new "light on boxes" to signal the Boston police, Chief of Police George Ducker of Portsmouth, N. H., could tell you he has for years only had to turn a switch to get in touch with his officers on patrol duty.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

To what extent short covering contributed to the latest recovery can only be guessed. It is certain that during the weak spells considerable buying was accomplished by the bear element. But the principal buying came from banking sources. There was no concerted banking pool support, nor was any required. Nevertheless, there was definite evidence, and no pains were taken to obscure the information, that substantial buying orders had bee nplaced in the market by interests identified with leading banks and banking houses.

A good deal of such buying was dictated by the purely selfish reasons that certain issues had declined to attractive purchasing levels, while the remainder of the banking orders were of a character usually described as "support."

It is not at all improbable that the market has emerged from an era of spectacular fluctuations and volume and for the immediate future will drift into a relatively quiet spell, during which a more accurate view of the prospects can be secured.

General Foods Earnings Good

Earnings of General Foods Corp. hold up very well. While the management regrets the failure to attain what it regards as a normal expected increase in earnings, the corporation's record of keeping profits closely in line with those of a year ago is in sharp contrast with the experience of many industrial companies.

Electric Output for Month Gains

Engineers Public Service Co. reports electrical output for September of 181,038,000 kilowatt hours, an 11.1 per cent increase over September, 1929. Output for nine months was 1,545,326,000, a gain of 8.5 per cent over the first nine months of 1929.

The largest gain is shown in territory served by Virginia Electric & Power Co. where power used increased 14 per cent over last year, which compares with a 7 per cent gain in August over August, 1929. Subsidiaries serving the Gulf States section also show good gain in power used, indicating increases in industrial activity.

BOSTON STOCK PRICES EASIER ON WEEK-END

Prices were generally easier for the week-end in trading on the Boston Stock Exchange. There were, however, a few gains. Changes in either direction were mostly moderate.

American Telephone and General Electric declined over 3, and Gillette over 4. Boston Elevated second preferred gained 2 at 90.

Economy Stores lifted nearly 2 and First National advanced over a point. General Alloys rose a point, along with Hathaway preferred.

New England Telephone sagged over 2. Point or more losses showed for New Haven, Pennsylvania, Hygrade Lamp, Eastern Gas & Fuel preferred, Torrington, United Founders and United Shoe.

New lows for 1930 were set by Westfield Mfg., Utah Apex, Utah Metals, Public Utility Holdings and St. Mary's, mainly with slight declines.

Consumer Psychology Governs Trade Volume

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

New York, Oct. 11—Business recovery rests with the ultimate consumer rather than with the producer.

A group of modern Wall Street bankers, who understand the psychology of merchandising, think the government, through the Federal Farm Board and otherwise, has made a mistake in bolstering the activities of producers. If the government desires to intervene, they insist, it could get more tangible results by helping the consumer. One specific suggestion was that the government make available from $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 for financing suburban residential developments at very low rates of interest, under careful supervision. As a matter of fact, consumer relief would stimulate trade more than producer relief, but the wisdom of tapping Treasury funds to quicken recovery is open to serious question.

M. S. Rukeyser

The so-called overproduction springs in part from consumer psychology. Excessive capacity will, of course, be reduced as soon as the consumer feels more venturesome. The business problem now is to break the vicious cycle of depression.

* * *

One thoughtful investment banker, in chatting about this question, said that the turn will come from the present tendency of consumption to run along evenly while production has been reduced to a subnormal basis. This, he believes, is making shortages of inventories, which will inevitably lead to quickened industrial operations and a turn in the volume of business and in sentiment. The banker was referring to consumption goods, such as clothing, shoes and foodstuffs. He pointed out that consumption, in spite of the ups and downs of business, continues on a fairly even keel. He placed automobiles and residential buildings in a different category, which he chooses to call intermediate goods. The subnormal activity in those two trades, he says, springs from current disobedience on the part of consumers to the law of obsolescence. In other words, for the time being they are willing to use old houses and partly worn-out cars.

He believes, however, that consumers will again obey the law of obsolescence when they are assured that the business outlook is better. Accordingly, he expects general business—the manufacture and distribution of consumable goods—to precede a pick-up in the sale of intermediate things, such as homes and automobiles. The third class of goods is called production goods—plants and factory equipment, which are made not for use, but to facilitate further production. The demand for such goods, he pointed out, springs not from the inert 120,000,000 Americans, but from a select class of 10,000 executives, who are more sensitive to prevailing moods and fashions about prosperity and depression.

* * *

Paul M. Mazur, Wall St. banker who in his books urged executives to approach business from the consumption side instead of from the Fordized angle of mass production, sees three lessons from the depression; namely, the unalterable law of consumption, which varies little through the years, apart from the long-term upward trend; second, the so-called fallacy of shutting out goods by tariff and thus curtailing the market for our own production; and third, the danger of artificial price valorization schemes.

* * *

Hartley Withers, British economist, viewing the world-wide recession through spectacles, thinks that central banks of the world have disturbed conditions. "That 'want of collective wisdom' on the part of the world's banking authorities which has heaped up gold and sterilized it in America and France seems to have been a devastatingly serious mistake," Mr. Withers asserts. "Among the non-monetary causes of the depression Mr. Withers lists war in China, political unrest in India and Egypt, the absence of Russia from the commercial map, lack of confidence in England owing to increased taxation aimed exclusively at the wealthy, and the ever-rising tariffs with which the world's wise rulers constantly obstruct the course of international trade."

* * *

Those in the confidence of Sidney Z. Mitchell, guiding factor in the Electric Bond & Share family, report that he feels that nothing in the economic picture beclouds the essential importance of electric service as a factor in present day civilization. Accordingly, he is making plans for future expansion and development, undeterred by passing business and stock market conditions.

Corn Takes Drop in Chicago Market

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP)—Corn closed unsteady at 3c-3¾c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish; wheat closed nervous, 1⅝-2⅜c down; oats, 1⅛-1⅜c off, and provisions varying from 17c decline to a rise of 12c.

CURB MARKET TREND LOWER ON WEEK-END

New York, Oct. 11—Reactionary tendencies again dominated the course of movements on the Curb Market today. Most sections of the list dipped to moderately lower levels.

Inability of stocks to extend their advance in the early dealings influenced renewed pressure in the last hour.

The utility group sold off rather sharply with Electric Bond & Share slumping some 4 points.

A weak tone was also evidenced in American Gas & Electric, American Superpower, Associated Gas and Electric A, Brazilian Traction, Commonwealth Edison, Middle West Utilities, United Gas and United Light & Power.

Tampa Electric was an outstanding strong spot, however, spurting to 60 for a gain of 7 points.

Cities Service sagged fractionally after first hour strength, and closed on the downside.

Oils were irregular, with Gulf and Standard of Indiana holding steady, in contrast with moderate declines in Humble and Vacuum.

Investment trusts were in steady supply, and the few earlier advances attained in a number of holding company stocks were quickly turned into net losses before the closing gong.

Aluminum Company moved contrary to the trend in the miscellaneous group gained 3 points. Other industrial favorites were sharply lower.

$30 Dividend on Glue Is Expected

It is understood that President J. P. Lyman of American Glue Company will recommend to directors that a cash dividend of $30 per share out of surplus be paid on the common stock on October 15 to stock of record October 11, says the Boston News Bureau. It is also understood that the offer to surrender preferred shares at $135 per share will be extended from October 14 to October 31.

Tire Operations to Be Maintained

Production operations of General Tire & Rubber Company will continue at present rate during November and December and will be increased in January, it is announced by President W. O'Neil.

"At no time this year has our production dropped more than 15 per cent from the peak," President O'Neil said. "Our company made a gain in business in September over September, 1929, both in units and in dollars."

Bond Market Has Renewed Strength

New York, Oct. 11—Signs of an upturn from the low levels reached this week developed in the bond market today. Nervous selling of Latin American issues lost a great deal of the vigor of previous sessions and the price movement narrowed. Here and there a bond registered an advance of a point or two. Prominent European governments were steady to firm.

WALL STREET HAS NORMAL REACTION FROM REBOUND

New York, Oct. 11—There was a normal reaction from yesterday afternoon's swift rebound of prices in trading for the week-end on the New York Stock Exchange.

Traders, as usual, lightened accounts prior to a two-day closing. The exchange will be shut down Monday for the Columbus Day observances. Considerably less than 2,000,000 shares changed hands in the short session, and there were no signs of hysterical liquidation. The closing was soft.

UNABLE TO HOLD

Industrial stocks and utilities were unable to hold the position acquired by yesterday's spirited closing rally.

Except for a brief period after the opening, when moderate rallies took place in a number of speculative leaders, the trend of the market was downward, with losses ranging from one to five points in a long list of the well known shares.

Failure of the U. S. Steel, American Can, General Electric, Westinghouse and other blue chips to hold any large proportion of Friday's gains was discouraging to the bulls, many of whom were deterred by Monday's holiday from entering the market in support of their favorites.

United States Steel dropped off from 151 to 147¾ as selling pressure developed, and the prominent amusement stocks, Loews and Fox, were again under pressure. General Motors dipped to a new low for the year at 35¼, and fairly heavy losses were sustained by the dividend rails, Chesapeake & Ohio losing three points and New York Central four.

AMUSEMENTS SOLD

Heavy selling of the amusement stocks broke out near the close. Loews sustained a net loss of nearly five points at 53⅝, Fox closed about two points lower at 35⅛, Radio Keith down ½ at 21½, and Paramount down 1⅛ at 48⅛.

United States Steel finished the short session only a point lower, however, at 148½. Bethlehem Steel lost 2½ points at 73½, American Can 1⅝ at 116⅞, and General Electric 3⅝ at 54¾. Westinghouse was off about five points at 111⅝.

General Motors closed at 35¼, down 2⅛; Sears Roebuck down 2⅞ at 55; New York Central down 5 at 140, Baltimore & Ohio down 2 at 856, American & Foreign Power down 3⅞ at 39⅝, Consolidated Gas down 3⅝ at 95⅝, Columbia Gas down 2⅞ at 44⅛, Vanadium down 2⅝ at 49⅝, and Houston Oil down 2⅝ at 54.

Transactions on the big board today totalled 1,725,000 shares, about double last Saturday's volume.

The week-end business and trade reports indicated wide cross currents, but, on the whole, were reassuring.

Advices from Youngstown said that steel mill operations in that area would be maintained at approximately 53 per cent of capacity next week, bringing a halt to the recent slowing up of activity. It is also leading to a belief in steel circles the next change will be upward. September copper statistics showed a large gain in stocks, but this had been expected.

The "Annalist" in its weekly Industry, had shown decided signs of improvement, and recalled that the textile industry was the first to turn upward after the bottom of the 1921 depression was reached.

The department of commerce's weekly figures on bank debits showed a marked upturn in the demand for funds by commerce and trade, which indicated the volume of business in the aggregate was showing further seasonal expansion. This had been shown in the firmer tone in the money market during the week.

The remarks of president Whitney of the Stock Exchange, before the Illinois Chamber of Commerce last evening, indicating that bear raiders can be successful only when the public becomes hysterical, and explaining that short selling only provides the basis of recovery when shorts buy back, many have been a factor in calming speculative sentiment.

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

Boston's reputation for progressiveness in financial matters will receive a further boost in the next few weeks. McMichael & Co. will launch the Securities Trust of America, which will be the pioneer in what appears to be a foolproof investment trust field.

* * *

There is no chance of capital depletion through disbursement as income, as earned income only is to be paid in divedends. Another feature is that thetrust will be built on a base of highest type of bonds, subject to conservative restrictions. The holders of the trust shares may, at any time, convert them into cash by making application to the trustee on the basis of one point under the asset value of the shares at that time.

* * *

Boston brokers looking ahead to the time when business conditions will point upward are already making a study of the motor situation. They believe these stocks, the first to feel the depression, will also be the first to show improvement.

ADVICE TO INVESTORS IS FREE

IRREGULAR RECORD

M. M., Norwood—I own twenty-five shares Standard Oil of Kansas at higher levels. What is your opinion of it?

Ans.—Standard Oil of Kansas is speculative because of irregular dividend record. Dividends at various rates were paid from 1911 to 1924; then suspended until December, 1929, when a quarterly payment of 50 cents was distributed, since maintained. An extra of 25 cents was paid at that time. Net for six months ended June 30 equaled $1.19 a share, contrasted with $1.44 for similar period of 1929. In 1929 earnings were $4.73 a share, compared with 91 cents in 1928 and a deficit of $2.59 in 1927. Though a paper loss is disconcerting, no one can predict future prices.

SPECULATIVE STOCK

H. T., Everett—I own stocks and bonds bought on your advice. What would you say to a purchase of Sinclair Oil?

Ans.—Earnings of Sinclair Consolidated Oil do not cover the current $2 dividend paid from April 15, 1929, following suspension in May, 1924. Net income for six months ended June 30 was equivalent to 49 cents a share, after preferred dividends. This contrasted with $1.02 for similar period of 1929. Net profits in 1929 were $2.82 a share, compared with $2.21 in 1928, and 89 cents in 1927.

A SPECULATION

D. A., Watertown—I own 100 shares Curtiss-Wright "A." What is your opinion of it?

Ans.—Curtiss-Wright "A" is a speculation on which we could not advise. It pays no dividends. In fact, operations for 1929 resulted in a net loss of $1,956,000, excluding $1,620,000 profit on sale of securities. Operations for six months ended June 30, 1930, brought a deficit of $5,351,661. At recent levels you had a seven-point loss. No one can predict future prices.

AN ADDITIONAL $2,000

K. G., Newton—I own $1000 Prudence Company 5½s and ten shares Associated Gas & Electric "A." I want to invest an additional $2000. What shall I buy?

Ans.—Buy twenty shares Cities Service Preferred. The stock, costing less than $2000, will bring $120 annually. This advice is based, of course, on the theory that you have made proper provision for emergencies which may arise. Prudence Company 5½s are sound. Earnings for Associated Gas & Electric Class "A" cover the $2 dividends.

CHURCH NEWS AND NOTES

HERE AND THERE AMONG THE CHURCHES

ADVENT CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The Rev. J. William Denton has been appointed pastor of this church at 160 Warren st., Boston, to succeed the late Rev. I. M. Blanchard, who was killed in an automobile accident. This is the third time Pastor Denton has followed the Rev. Blanchard.

Previously the Rev. Denton was general director of the Advent Christian General Conference of America, superintending over the entire field. A large congregation is expected to greet the new pastor tomorrow morning at 10:30.

OLD AGE ASSISTANCE.

A series of dinners has been arranged for a discussion by citizens interested in the working of the new act. These dinners will be held at the Women's Educational and Industrial Union October 15, November 17 and January 14.

Walter McCarthy, secretary of Boston overseers of public welfare, will conduct the discussions.

ROY M. CUSHMAN

A second lecture in a course on "Social Service and Family Welfare," held in Boston College high school under the auspices of the Catholic Charitable Bureau, will be given next Tuesday evening by Roy M. Cushman, on the Council of Social Agencies, of which Mr. Cushman is the secretary.

BOSTON FEDERATION

Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of Churches, will lead the annual service of worship conducted by the Greater Boston Federation of Churches, to be held next Monday evening at the First Church in Boston on Marlboro st. Dr. Charles Edward Park, minister of this Unitarian church, will be assisted in the service by the Rev. S. M. Lindsay of the First Baptist Church, Brookline; the Rev. Flint Bissell of the Universalist Church; the Rev. Benjamin Washburn of the Episcopal Church; the Rev. Ashley Day Leavitt of the Brookline Congregational Church, and the Rev. H. Clinton Hay of the Church of the New Jerusalem. All the ministers of Greater Boston have been invited.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

The lesson sermon tomorrow for all Christian Science churches includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures": "The prayer that reforms the sinner and heals the sick is an absolute faith that all things are possible to God—a spiritual understanding of Him, an unselfed love. . . . Prayer, watching, and working, combined with self-immolation, are God's gracious means for accomplishing whatever has been successfully done for the Christianization and health of mankind." (p. 1).

The Sunday services of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, are held at 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

CHURCH FEDERATION

Speakers who will appear for the Greater Boston Federation of Churches on Boston Common Mall tomorrow afternoon will include a team of young men from the Gordon College of Theology. They will have with them several cornetists.

REV. H. B. HILL

At the First Methodist Church on Temple st. tomorrow morning the Rev. H. B. Hill will preach on "The Abundant Life." The First Church Quartet will furnish music. In the evening the Rev. George Lyman Paine will speak on "Soviets and the Church in Russia."

TOTAL ABSTINENCE

In memory of Father Theobold Matthew, apostle of total abstinence in Ireland, a public banquet and celebration will be held at the Cathedral School Hall, October 19, at 6:30.

DR. A. Z. CONRAD

Tomorrow morning "Loaded Dice" has been chosen by the pastor of Park St. Church for a sermon topic. In the evening Dr. Conrad will preach on the "By-products of Salvation."

In the afternoon a huge chorus will practice at the church for selections to be sung at the great mass meeting on the following Sunday at 3:30 in Boston Garden when Senator Borah will address a great audience. At the present time there are about 17,000 reservations. Dr. Conrad is sure all seats will be gone before doors are open.

SACRED PICTURES

Two beautifully painted pictures have been hung in the Charlestown Baptist church, and may be seen by visitors. They are the work of Baron Albert Von Riegers. One is "Christ in Gethsemane" and the other is "The Good Shepherd." Last Sunday was a very successful rally day in this church. The unveiling of the pictures took place in the evening.

PREACHING MISSIONS

Four missions will be conducted by the Laymen's League of the Unitarian association. These will be in the Old Ship church in Hingham, in the First Parish church, Needham, First Unitarian church, Middleboro, and the Channing church in Rockland. Dr. Charles E. Park, the Rev. E. Stanton Hodgin, the Rev. Samuel E. Dunham and the Rev. Frank O. Holms will be among the preaching missionaries.

New Bishop

The Rev. Henry K. Sherrill, D.D., will be consecrated Episcopal bishop of the Massachusetts diocese next Tuesday morning at Trinity Church, where he has served as rector. Bishop Lawrence will deliver the sermon, and seven bishops will assist in the laying on of hands. Mr. Sherrill has chosen the date, October 14, as the same upon which Bishop Phillips Brooks was consecrated fifth bishop of Massachusetts. Following the ceremony in the evening there will be a public reception at the Museum of Fine Arts.

DEFAMATION OF CHARACTER OPPOSED

A hopeful move to make unpopular all forms of character defamation during political campaigns has been made by the Knights of Columbus who passed a resolution to that effect at their State council meeting in Templeton.

The knights have gone farther and are preparing to take some kind of stand against such practices. A league is proposed and a resolution passed by the knights reveals the serious concern this order of Catholic men has in connection with political campaigns.

In part the resolution reads:

"Too often the people of the State have been deprived of service and public spirit of leading citizens because they recoil from the blasphemous and dastardly attacks of the defaming orator or the treachery of the whispering campaign and the character assassin."

MANY FAMOUS PREACHERS TAKE PART

Leading thinkers and orators of the pulpit will take part in the annual preaching conference to begin at Boston University-Robinson chapel, Mt. Vernon st., next Monday morning, and continue at the ... ley Church, Exeter st., the 14th and 15th. Monday evening Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of Churches, will be the speaker to be followed by Dr. William L. Stidger on "Geographers of Spiritual Uplands." In the morning session at Robinson chapel Fred Winslow Adams and Dr. James Gordon Gilkey are the preachers. Dr. Gilkey takes for his subject, "Does the World Still Need Preachers?"

Divinity students, preachers everywhere are invited to hear these leaders of the cloth, whose preaching has brought them renoun.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Is a mother justified in making beer and selling it to provide for her starving children?

Her husband deserted her. She is now in prison and her home is broken up. Other particulars in this case, if mentioned, would justify her action.

I maintain that her action is justified. Necessity knows no law. Firemen break windows, smash doors to put the fire out. They are not burglars. Necessity knows no law.

Lawyers make most of the laws of this country. It is to be expected that they would be eager to support their own handiwork, but the stubborn fact is that most of the best lawyers in criminal practice are on the side of the law breakers. Necessity knows no law.

Why not treat prohibition the same way? Do you get my point?

HENRY T. YOUNG.

Find No Prohibition Law in the Bible

Editor Boston American:

I am calling attention to the Bible quotation, "Be ye temperate in all things." This is the only command in it that has to do with intoxicants, although it mentions wine many times and the first miracle had to do with it. The Bible has no prohibition law in it, evidently.

The women of America are banding together to oppose national prohibition as a crime breeder. How Mrs. Tilton, the head of the Republican party in Massachusetts, can persistently defend this infamous law is beyond the comprehension of a good many. Of course, it has given her great political prestige. So much so that a good many people don't know whether she or Mr. Butler is the one running for office.

MRS. NORA COYNE.

Reader Cites Reason for Garrett's 'Absence'

Editor Boston American:

Every time I pick up the American I read Oliver B. Garrett missing another day. Do you and the rest of the people of Boston really believe they are looking for him? I believe that if they ever brought Garrett to justice, he would put a good many of the big fellows of the State House and City Hall into a lot of trouble.

So that is my reason why Garrett is missing 107 days.

H. P. BUZZELL.

"Back to the Soil" Is Bench-Warmer's Ideal

Editor Boston American:

I have sat mornings on a bench in Boston Common just thinking. I know that many of us who have held down seats in that place enjoy this spot. We wish that weather conditions would allow us to sit under the trees therein for 12 months. Few people know the history of the men sleeping there on the grass. They have in some instances a remarkable history.

What I am getting at is this: We have talked over life. We have all agreed that we are one in hating modern city life. As we sit on these benches and look at the dwellings on Beacon st., imagining there is much luxury there, we are more than ever convinced that the soil of Mother Earth is the best place to go back to.

What does all this city life in Boston amount to? Come up to Boston Common and hear the conclusions of the men, bench-warmers if you like, the philosophers of the settees. We want to get back to Mother Earth. Who will help us?

M. G. MERWIN.

Jelly-Lover Says Malden Is the Home of Experts

Editor Boston American:

You need to be patted on the back for giving space to that woman, 97 years, who is a jelly expert. She really is this. She lives now in Malden. That city, by the way, takes the cake for all kinds of jelly.

A former pastor of the First Baptist Church there is now head and shoulders over any one else in making marmalade. He has commercialized it and his marmalade strikes bottom every time.

This is no dream. If you want to get in touch with good jelly makers, just hang around Malden. Housekeepers over there are crackerjacks at making all kinds of toothsome jellies.

HIRAM N. HENSOM.

Woman Finds Letters "Something to Think About"

Editor Boston American:

We all would have "something to think about" if we could always get letters, such as Joe Hines and B. N. Fowler's letters. They were worth reading.

MRS. MARY MURPHY.

Dry Turns to Bible to Answer Plea for Morrow

Editor Boston American:

Some of the wets in Greater Boston are booming Dwight W. Morrow for President of the United States in 1932. But the Drys are quoting the bible text: "Take No Thought for the Morrow"; St. Matt., 6 chapter, 34 verse.

G. H. SWEETLAND

Defense of "Reds" Angers Writer

Editor Boston American:

Those of us true-blooded Americans, who read that defense of Communism in your letter column, are indignant over the comparison made there between the Declaration of Independence and the principles of present-day Communism.

Compare them. See what a farce it is to lug Communism along and aim to make it associate with the Declaration of Independence. They are distinct, though both had some revolution in them. You can't defend this present system that goes around crying for more personal liberty when all it seeks is to get license to do what flashes into its overheated brain.

I still agree with Gov. Allen that these upstarts that cannot take our principles, equality for all, but want to read in their poisonous opinions, should depart and be no more seen.

Only One School Named for Woman

THE PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

By CARL MORRISON

Tonight is the last opportunity for Bostonians to visit the exposition at Commonwealth Armory where the State public works department and Boston Port Authority have an exhibit of interest to the 30,000 local people who make a living through marine business in some form or other.

The ship models, piers, plans are too numerous to mention in detail, but a comparison of today's sea traffic with that of 1630, 1730, and 1830 is of interest.

Last year's commerce at this port would have required 340,000 ships like the Mayflower, 85,000 of the 1730 type and 42,000 of a century ago.

A specially striking display is the lively harbor scene in water colors, listing 64 foreign lines in regular service to and from Boston, and 15 more in coastal trade.

CUNARD ARRIVAL

The Cunarder Laconia is due here tomorrow afternoon with a large contingent of Bostonians and others.

Among those debarking are: Miss Harriet F. Parker, daughter Hon. Herbert Parker of the Massachusetts Bay Colony Tercentenary commission; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Greene of West Newton, John Lyon of Milton, Miss Mary E. Goddard of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lewis of Lexington, Miss Bertha Hewins of Dedham, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Tonks of Malden; Mr. and Mrs. Hiram P. Brower and family of Watertown, Miss Lillian Bates and Miss Jean Swain of Boston, Miss L. Edith Hopper of Newburyport, Mr. and Mrs. John Baich of Boston, James J. Burke of Dorchester, Miss Catherine Collins of Roslindale, Miss H. L. Gavin of South Boston.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

The subject of today's harbor personage is Robert Gale of 31 State st., cargo surveyor. He is the son of Carl C. Gale, traffic manager of the North Packing and Provision Co., who is prominent in traffic circles throughout the country.

Robert Gale

The son also is making a name for himself and gaining a wide acquaintance by being in business for himself. He learned surveying under Warren Dilloway. His technical training as a graduate of the Massachusetts Nautical Schoolship, and as second mate with the Lunkenbach line, help him in his work.

His hobby is seamanship, and he is well posted on marine affairs.

THREE YEARLY VISITS

Announcement has been made by the steamboat inspection service of the U. S. Department of Commerce, that three inspections a year will be made of vessels which formerly were subject only to one a year. The addition of 45 inspectors to the staff has made this new plan possible, one which is expected to lead to many improvements in public safety.

Intelligence Test Solution

Here is the answer.

Fill the three pint measure from the five pint measure, and then empty the three pint measure. Pour the remaining two pints from the five pint measure into the three pint measure. Then fill the five pint measure. Total, seven pints.

You can demonstrate this for yourself with two cans of the proper size and a river.

"PUT ON THE SPOT"

"To Bandy's," he ordered as his driver spun the engine.

The auto stopped. Gleason went in, passed a long bar and opened a heavy metal door in the rear with two keys. Inside was an office, an ornate one for Gleason. It was a heritage from Kinky. Gleason picked up the French handset, fumbled, talked into the receiving end, got it adjusted with an oath, and in a low voice called a number.

"Come Alone!"

"Yeah—me," he said. "T'rough the alley and I'll let you in the back way. Come alone."

He walked into the bar and motioned for whiskey. Bandy Gluntz, the vassal in charge, opened a little cabinet and drew forth a bottle of the uncut stuff and set it up. Gleason threw in a stiff slug and shoved the water aside. Then he said a few words to Gluntz in an undertone.

"Right you are, boss," affirmed the bartender. He touched a buzzer and from above came three worthies. Bandy whispered to them. They went through a small side door and up a narrow, short flight of steps to a balcony that surrounded the office. In the wall concealed from within by curtains, were slots each big enough to admit the muzzle of a sawed-off rifle. The men could see into the lighted room; they could not be seen.

Gleason closed the door to the bar, opened another armored door into the alley ajar, and stood peering out. Up the passage, unattended, walked a stocky man with square shoulders and an air of authority. His hands hung free. Gleason stepped back, leaving the entrance open. The chief of police entered. He wore civvies.

"Sit down," invited Gleason. He shoved a decanter and a glass toward his visitor. The chief poured himself a shot and downed it.

"Chief," said the secretary, "I never done business 'd'rec' wit' the Law. I got your message an' I'm takin' the chance. There's 40 men knows where I am an' who I'm wit'. If anything drops on me—"

"Joe," interrupted the chief, "we nailed one of Goldie's outfit last night, and he coughed up his guts."

"I don' believe it," snapped Gleason.

"We gave him the fourth degree. He cracked. He spilled the works—who clipped Kinky King, why and how, and the way they're framing to spot a few more of you, mainly yourself."

"Oh, yeah? It'll take more'n that bunch o' squirrel-poppers to——"

"They won't get to first base. I've got a proposition for you."

"I know—you want me an' my mob to blow the racket, then you'll handle the Gorios, an' they'll build you a monument in the park. Nothin' doin'. We'll pay our p'tection like we always did an' we'll p'tect ourself like we always did."

"Don't get all hot and bothered, Joe. You were never wronger in your life. Now, listen: Cops dassen't kill."

"Oh, no-o-o-o?"

Police Can't Shoot

"No. We can't shoot men down unless we catch 'em in the act. No use our pinching any of that gang, either. Who'd testify? Who'd prosecute? Who'd sit on a jury? They'd raise a million dollars bail, get crooked lawyers and straight lawyers and run us dizzy and beat the rap in the finish. Now, the word I sent you is on the up-and-up. I'll tell you when and where. You and your boys go to it. I'm in with you—and, again, I ain't. No harness-men on that beat when you spring action. 'Came to their death by homicide at hands unknown,' says the coroner. I'm dumb. I don't know. How about it?"

Gleason slowly poured himself a drink. He held the mellow rye to the light and watched the oily globules float on top to the edge. He flung it into his throat and gulped. He set down the little glass.

"I like it," he said.

"The proposition?" eagerly exclaimed the chief.

"No, the hootch. It's the real McCoy. If I was as sure o' you as I am o' that——"

"Don't be a imbecile. Would I come here, alone, like this? Would I cross you through your own brother-in-law, who's a precinct captain, who got us together? Would I double-team you as raw and as clumsy as this?"

Shook Cop's Hand

"N-no. If a copper can be on the level, I guess you are this time. Lead your ace. What's exactly the trick you want turned?"

The chief leaned far forward, rested his elbows on the desk and talked rapidly, incisively. Joe's eyes lighted up for the first time. He listened and said nothing. The chief drew little diagrams with his index finger on the polished mahogany surface. He did delsarte with his two hands. He hit his right fist on the board and made the glasses dance. He put his nose almost into Secretary Gleason's mouth as he strained nearer.

". . . and, Joe, here's my hand on it," he wound up. Goldie get his . . . I get mine . . . you get yours—you wipe out that mob and you wipe out the murder of Kinky King . . . and you get that whole North Side."

Secretary Gleason took the hand—the first time he had taken the hand of a copper in his life.
